U. S. ATTACKS JAPS BY LAND, SEA, AIR; DESTROYS 100 PLANES, BLASTS 7 SHIPS

Russians Open Fresh Attack At Stalingrad

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.

MOSCOW, Monday, Nov. 2.—(AP) Russian troops, switching to the attack in the big Battle of Stalingrade, made advances both in the northern and southern parts of the city Sunday, but the Germans again forged ahead in their offensive on the Plains of Nalchik at the foot of the Caucasus mountains, the Soviet midnight communique said today.

The Germans launched an attack in the northern factory district of Stalingrad in an attempt to regain the initiative, but the communique said an enemy regiment was thrown back and the Russians counterattacked and "occupied several enemy strongpoints."

The fighting in this area was extremely fierce.

Several hundred Germans were said to have been killed during the Russian attack, while Soviet artillery and mortars were reported to have dispersed and partially wiped out two regiments of enemy infantry.

Northwest of Stalingrad, the communique said, the Russians continued to consolidate their positions and carry out reconnaissance raids. No changes in the situation in this sector were reported.

On the Black sea front, northeast of the Port of Tuapse, the Russians again were attacking, the communique said. One Soviet unit was said to have captured a strategically important height, killing about 300 Germans.

Farther up the coast, in the area of Novorossisk, Russian marines carried out a raid behind German lines, killing about 100 Germans, destroying six blockhouses and some ammunition and supply dumps.

But the center of gravity of the widely separated Russian battlefronts was the high Nalchik plains at the foot of the 18,000-foot Caucasus mountains where the Germans were striking powerful blows on the approaches to the Georgian military highway across the mountains, less than 60 miles away.

The communique said that in

Navy Reveals Heavy Damage to Enemy's Carriers, Cruisers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The golden-winged fliers of the Navy struck a smashing blow at a Japanese fleet in the battle which cost the United States an aircraft carrier and destroyer, the Navy announced tonight, pouring bombs or torpedoes on two enemy carriers, two battleships and three cruisers.

And after this action one week ago in waters some 260 miles northeast of Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, American warships returned to the fray Friday off Guadalcanal itself whence Japanese ships have withdrawn.

They blasted the foe's positions there with a two-hour cannonading which blew up artillery, buildings and boats. The American defenders ashore at Guadalcanal also hit the Japanese by land and by air.

Sea Engagements.

The sea engagement apparently represented a fight by the planes of opposing aircraft carriers like that in the battle of Midway last June when the carrier Yorktown was lost while her planes sank the Japanese carrier Hiryu and blasted opposing battleships and cruisers.

The Navy claimed no sinkings in the current battle, which was fought east of the Stewart Islands October 26, but its account of the pounding given the Japanese made it appear likely that one of the carriers was definitely put out of action and that other targets were heavily damaged.

The definite destruction of more than 100 Japanese planes and the probable destruction of 50 more was reported. How many of these were shot out of the sky and how many blown up on the carrier decks was not specified.

Jap Carriers.

The number of planes destroyed indicated that the Japanese had more carriers in action than the two which were damaged. Both of these were of the Zuikaku class of at least 17,000 tons, mothering 45 planes apiece. The two which were bombed are believed to be the only ones of this class—the Syokaku (Crane) and the Zuikaku (Lucky Stork), both launched in 1939 and completed last year.

Identification of the United States carrier which was sunk is

British Throw Foe Back Again In Desert War

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Britain's Eighth Army, continuing its methodical, sledgehammer offensive, has jolted the Axis loose from another section of tenaciously-held positions in the flinty corridor between the sea and Qattara Depression.

Moreover, it is holding its gains in the face of violent counterattacks by Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces, it was announced today.

With hundreds of roaring guns and a supreme Allied air umbrella still playing the dominant roles, British infantry executed another of its night attacks Friday after a withering barrage reduced enemy strongpoints.

Dazed Germans and Italians still clinging to the smashed positions were rounded up and sent to the rear as prisoners.

Tanks Wrecked.

The ground was strewn with the wreckage of tanks blown up by the retreating enemy and a barrage as heavy as that which opened the offensive just over a week ago.

The great mobile tank battles which heretofore have characterized desert campaigns in this war were still absent, but the Germans had sent in some armored forces in exploratory fashion.

A battle between one such unit of 50 tanks and a rifle company which was using light British six-pounder artillery was described in front line dispatches.

Thirty-eight tanks, including some of the Germans' best Mark IV's, were knocked out in the fierce 36-hour battle, and "the night was burnished with burning tanks," the British commander in the action reported.

Attacks Continuous.

Although the British communique told of no offensive action later than Friday night, Axis war bulletins indicated the attack was continuing Saturday. Rome said violent fighting took place in the northern sector when the British were stopped by counterattacks. The Italians claimed that British prisoners taken in the offensive thus far had mounted to 2,000.

(A British radio correspondent at the front broadcast, "We have at least doubled our bag of Axis prisoners," as a result of the latest advance.)

American aviation continued to play a strong part, bringing down its share of enemy planes, as Allied airmen swept unchecked over forward and rear areas, shooting up tanks, airfields and troop concentrations and upsetting counter operations of the enemy.

In one of the "three outstanding air operations" described in today's communique, Allied airmen scored a spectacular success against an enemy armored force headquarters near the front.

Tents, tanks, armored cars and antiaircraft posts were smashed and burned in chaotic confusion as fighter-bombers dipped over the encampment.

Troops standing at washtubs and at mess were bowled over by machinegun fire from the air and the whole headquarters was left blazing, the pilots said.

Turkey Stands in Peril Of Attack, Inonu Warns

Britain Leads World in Per Capita Output

CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 1.—(AP) Britain leads the nations of the world, ally or enemy, in the per capita production of war materials, Home Secretary Morrison said today, and added there still is room for improvement although she is near the limit of her manpower.

Britain's output, excluding planes and ships, increased 14 per cent in September over August, he said in a speech here.

The increase for planes was nearly 20 per cent. While no monthly percentage was given for shipbuilding, Morrison said that the per capita output is twice that of any other country.

Almost six tons of planes were produced in September for every five tons in August which is a record for a month, Morrison proudly related.

"This small country, with its 45,000,000 people, has achieved a war output that stands in the front rank of productive achievements on either side," he said.

"Its output per head is greater

Army Planes Join Rickenbacker Hunt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Army planes en route to the southwest Pacific have joined the search for Captain E. V. "Eddie" Rickenbacker, War Department officials disclosed today, in the hope that the missing World War ace may still be found.

Bombers and other planes headed for the Solomons fighting front have been directed to break usual formations and fan out over the Pacific south of Honolulu to cover as much area as possible.

Northbound air traffic presumably follows the same procedure, further supplementing the search by surface vessels which started when Rickenbacker's plane was last heard from by radio 11 days ago. The naval search was still in progress last week but whether it continued today was not disclosed.

Although nothing has been heard of Rickenbacker and the seven Air Force officers and men who accompanied him since his plane reported October 21 that sufficient gasoline remained for only one hour's flying, the War Department has not added them to its list of missing.

Fliers have been picked up from rubber rafts after floating in the Pacific for more than a month, and Secretary Stimson said Thursday he clung to hope. Rickenbacker, he noted, was "an exception to the usual rules."

Rickenbacker, president of the Eastern Air Lines, was en route to the southwest Pacific as a confidential adviser to Stimson to make a survey of Army air personnel and facilities like that which he had just completed of air forces in Great Britain.

The last radio message from his plane was received when the craft was somewhere southwest of Honolulu — presumably following the island-studded air route between the United States, Hawaii and Australia. In the Rickenbacker group was Captain Hans Adamson of the Air Forces, who accompanied him on his survey trip to Britain.

Rickenbacker, as commander of the 94th "Hat in the Ring" aero squadron in France, was credited with personally shooting down 21 German planes and four baloons.

Chicago Doctor Wins Cancer Research Award

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Dr. Charles Brenton Huggins, professor of urology in the University of Chicago, was announced today as winner of a $1,000 prize for the outstanding cancer research of the year.

The Katherine Berkan Judd prize of the Memorial Hospital for the Treatment of Cancer and Allied Diseases was awarded Dr. Huggins "as a mark of recognition of the pioneer work resulting in marked amelioration and prolongation of life of many patients with prostatic cancer."

The announcement said that heretofore prostatic cancer had resisted completely all forms of treatment.

Closer to War Than Ever, He Tells Solons

ANKARA, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Ismet Inonu, President of Turkey, in an address at the opening of a special session of parliament today, said Turkey stands in danger of attack.

"Turkey is closer to war today than at any time since the present world conflict started," Inonu told the legislators in the course of an address on the state of the nation.

The parliament, he warned, must give serious consideration to a possibility that Turkey might be attacked after having succeeded in remaining neutral for three years.

"With the war spread over every quarter of the globe one begins to understand that political institutions founded on domination by a single power cannot be maintained," the President said.

Freedom for every nation, big and small, is the aim of Turkey's foreign policy, Inonu continued.

The year 1943, he said, would see "greater and crueller battles," and he could detect no disposition on the part of any of the belligerents to quit.

He asserted Turkey would remain loyal to her alliances and would follow policies aiming to strengthen national security.

Turkey in the coming year will continue her neutral "national policy both internationally and externally in the straightforward manner and will defend this policy energetically," the President said.

"We will follow our national policy, remaining faithful to our pacts and friendships and taking every precaution not to be drawn into some entanglement against any country."

Cadwell Man Held in Slaying Of Police Chief

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 1.—Police Chief Joseph E. Fennell, of Cadwell, 17 miles southwest of here, was found stabbed to death early this morning, Sheriff I. F. Coleman reported today.

Blanton Mullis, 30-year-old Cadwell farmer, is being held in the Laurens county jail charged with murder.

Mullis was arrested this afternoon on recommendation of a coroner's jury, headed by Coroner O. D. Knight.

Witnesses at the inquest said Mullis had entered a building in Cadwell at about midnight and claimed that he had just stabbed Fennell. They said Mullis appeared to be drunk and was bloody about the head. Mullis said Fennell had hit him with a blackjack after attempting to arrest him.

The witnesses, Edward Colter, Wyman Mullis, Homer Cofield and Hoke Mullis, testified that they had thought nothing of Mullis' statement at the time and Mullis left. About half an hour later, they said, they decided to investigate and found Fennell lying face down in a ditch a few yards from the building, with his jugular vein severed.

They notified Mayor C. J. Beddingfield, of Cadwell, who called Sheriff Coleman.

Deputies were unable to find Mullis immediately and he was apprehended at his home early this afternoon.

Fennell, 46, has been an officer at Cadwell for the past three years. He had been serving as chief for about six months. Before coming to Cadwell, he had been in police work at Chester, in Dodge county, for 22 years.

Fennell is survived by his wife and 12 children.

Liberia Now Using U. S. Money as Legal Tender

MONROVIA, Liberia, Nov. 1.—(AP)—American money denominations not exceeding $20 became legal tender in Liberia today under the executive order of President Barclay.

The exchange rate was fixed at four United States dollars to one British pound now circulating and $4 U. S. to $4.80 Liberian money.

Prelate Pleads for Unity, Sacrifice in War Effort.

By CHARLES A. WELSH.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—(AP) Warning America against the fate of conquered nations, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, called today for unity and sacrifice in the war effort and declared "We are resolved to meet, with God's help, every danger; to overcome every obstacle and to vanquish every foe."

"We must, we will win the victory," the second-ranking prelate of the Catholic church said in an address following a solemn pontifical high mass heard by 21,000 at Convention Hall.

And, speaking by shortwave to American men under arms whom he said are "risking their lives in the sacred cause of religion and civilization," he added:

"We pray that in every battle with our enemies God's protecting hand may be stretched over you."

The mass was offered for victory, a lasting peace and for the repose of the souls of war victims. Cardinal Dougherty's address, a message from President Roosevelt and a sermon by Auxiliary Bishop Hugh L. Lamb, of Philadelphia, were broadcast nationally (CBS) and by shortwave.

President Roosevelt said in his message: "I rejoice to know that this appeal to Almighty God to grant us victory and peace is to be made. . . . In these days of crisis we must all unite in labor and in prayer to achieve victory and to bring back to the world an international order dominated by true Christian principles."

"Should we lose this war," Cardinal Dougherty said, "this land

Trades Group To Co-operate In Fund Drive

Wholehearted participation in the Community Fund appeal has been voted by the Atlanta Federation of Trades, and a committee representing the various locals has been at work for several weeks to solicit pledges of AFL members on a basis of one day's pay, it was announced yesterday by Albert Gossett, president.

Gossett said in addition to pledges by individual members based on their ability to give, the Federation had recommended that each local contribute as an organization from its own treasury.

Goal Set Higher.

Miss Ira Jarrell, head of the Atlanta School Teachers Union, and a member of the Community Fund board of trustees, is chairman of the Federation of Trades' Community Fund committee.

"Our goal," Miss Jarrell said, "is a substantial increase in the contribution by AFL unions and members to this great community enterprise.

"Some of our members are very close to the work of fund agencies, and realize the need is greater in the critical wartime year that lies ahead.

"I think the record shows we have always done our share, but this year, we recognize the need to do more, and are planning to fulfill our responsibility as citizens."

Gossett said:

$248,068 Pledged.

"Our Community Fund committee spent some time in earnest study of the Fund activities, and recommended that each member of AFL unions contribute on the basis of one day's pay. This plan was presented to the Federation at its last meeting and was enthusiastically adopted."

Announcement of this planned participation by the AFL came as volunteer workers in the Fund Appeal entered the last week of the solicitation period with $248,068 pledged.

C. A. Stair, general appeal chairman, sent a personal message to each worker over the weekend, asking that thorough solicitation be completed as soon as possible.

"The pattern of success has been laid down," Stair said, "but it is up to individual workers to fit their individual accomplishments to the pattern. We can succeed, but we may fail again, unless each worker does his part. And failure will be disastrous in this critical wartime year."

Huge Jap Armada Hammered Badly in Battle for Solomons

(Editor's Note: Olen W. Clements, Associated Press correspondent from Texas, now with American forces in the embattled Solomon Islands, gives in the following story the first account direct from the battle area of the damage to Japanese sea forces which, in the words of Secretary of the Navy Knox, "retired from the scene" of their latest clash with American ships and planes.)

By OLEN W. CLEMENTS.

HEADQUARTERS, UNITED STATES FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Oct. 28.—(Delayed)—(AP)—A huge Japanese armada has limped away from the Solomon Islands licking wounds inflicted on it during the last two days by the United States Pacific Fleet.

At least one large enemy aircraft carrier of a new class was heavily damaged, another smaller carrier was hit and a heavy cruiser badly damaged in the fight.

American dive bombers and torpedo planes also pounded the enemy ships, estimated to have numbered from 40 to 50, which were sent from two directions to attempt a knockout blow against United States Marines and Army units at Guadalcanal Island.

Carrier Sunk.

The battle cost American forces one unnamed carrier and the destroyer Porter, both destroyed, and some damage to other warships. Personnel losses were light, however.

The Japanese fleet came at Guadalcanal from the northeast. Two heavy task forces some 150 to 200 miles apart moved in. Dive bombers from Guadalcanal and Flying Fortress planes from land bases spotted the enemy.

The advancing enemy fleet was strung out from the Stewart Islands southward to Florida Island, which is northeast of Guadalcanal, and east to Santa Cruz Islands north of the New Hebrides. Japanese cruisers and destroyers off Florida Island were hit by Douglas Dauntless dive bombers from Guadalcanal, site of Henderson airfield, which the Americans captured from the Japanese early in August.

One Japanese cruiser was damaged and stopped by a direct bomb hit. A few minutes later Flying Fortresses led by Major James Edmundson, Santa Monica, Cal., bore down on the Jap forces. An enemy light cruiser or heavy destroyer was left burning by these B17s.

Heavy Bombs.

Farther away, American carrier-based torpedo planes and dive-bombers began working on the Jap carriers. They sailed in with heavy bombs.

One American pilot said later the flight deck of the big new Jap carrier was completely smashed and she appeared to be sinking.

While the air battle roared, Japanese dive-bombers hit the Guadalcanal airfield. The Navy said five attacking planes were shot down. A few minutes later, nine Jap bombers came over, causing slight damage to the field.

Then our Grumman Wildcats rose to meet them. The air was filled with dogfights as the Japs were driven off.

On the ground, Jap forces attacked our Marines and soldiers, but our foot troops repulsed the enemy. The Marines described the action in this manner:

"The Japs attacked us and we suffered 85 casualties. Two thousand Jap bodies present a disposal problem."

The American carrier which was sunk was first attacked before noon October 26 off Santa Cruz Island by 26 planes. The carrier was heavily damaged, but was taken in tow. A short time later, enemy planes returned. This time, the carrier was hit below the waterline and began to list. The men were taken off and the carrier sank a few minutes later.

No indication has been given that Japanese and American surface ships made contact, but there is a possibility that they did, since the battle extended over a wide area, part of which was shielded by low clouds.

Fleet Remnants.

Today American scouting planes found remnants of the Jap fleet far north of the Solomons. The Japs were headed away from the battle area—evidently retiring for repairs or to form for another stab at retaking Guadalcanal and Tulagi islands.

One of the Jap forces was spotted by Army Lieutenant Mario Sesso, of New York, who was on the first scouting mission in this area. Sesso and his B-17 crew saw 14 Japanese warships and were attacked almost immediately by six enemy Zero fighters.

As the Japs came out of the overcast the Flying Fortress' guns opened up and one Zero spiraled to the sea. Two other enemy planes were smoking. A shot from a Zero killed Sesso's bombardier.

Another Army bomber, piloted by Captain Carl Wuertele, of Denver, got a glimpse of the battle. Radioman Sergeant Norman Watson, of Hinton, Okla., said he saw American dive bombers working over two Jap destroyers.

"I saw a big flash and one of the destroyers burst into flames," Watson said. "Then the Americans attacked the other, which began to smoke."

Watson said the Fortress didn't tarry long in that area, for Captain Wuertele had been wounded in the ankle in action over Rekata Bay and was losing blood. The plane landed safely at its base.

Construction In Dixie Hits All-Time High

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Manufacturers Record reported today an all-time record of $3,513,046,000 in construction contracts let below the Mason and Dixon line during the first 10 months of 1942, a figure it said embraced the greatest public building and industrial construction program in southern history.

The 10-month total was divided into $1,865,917,000 for public buildings and $997,720,000 for industrial construction.

"In addition," said the Record, "public engineering work totaled $392,147,000 and road and bridge contracts, $147,104,000, while private building, beset by stringent wartime restrictions since April, contributed $110,158,000, or a little more than 3 per cent of the total of all awards."

Ahead of Last Year.

The publication said southern construction at this time, including the $199,566,000 in contracts let during October, "is practically a billion dollars ahead of the total for the similar period of last year.

"The public building program is more than 100 per cent over the activity of the first ten months of 1941. Industrial construction for the current year has lagged about 10 per cent, compared with the same months of last year."

Quality Production.

October construction levels represented a drop, the Record continued, adding that "government policy was reflected in the decline. President Roosevelt's disclosure toward the end of October that quantity production was being supplanted by quality output was mirrored in the reduction of industrial construction from $52,620,000 in September to $8,645,000 in October.

"October's decline was seen in some circles as an indication of the probable trend of the immediate future in construction."

However, the Record added that "some drop may be expected in view of the peak reached in 1942," commenting that the 10-month figure for this year has exceeded all previous 12-month figures.

Lend-Lease Food Buying in U.S. To Gain 50 Per Cent Next Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department estimated today that military and lend-lease buying of food next year would be 50 per cent greater than during 1942, taking one-fifth of farm production.

The department made the estimate in a forecast of the farm outlook for next year in which it said that more livestock probably would be produced but that the crop production would be smaller than the record crops of this year unless weather conditions were exceptionally favorable.

Department officials explained, in connection with the forecast of increased lend-lease and military buying, that total figures for the present year could not be given for military reasons.

Civilian demand, like that of the military, is expected to increase next year, the department said, adding:

"There will be enough food in the total supply, although there may be shortages of many individual commodities. The average civilian probably will be able to consume about as much meat in 1943 as in recent years, but unprecedented demand resulting from record incomes will make rationing necessary. Awaiting rationing, civilian adults have been asked to limit their consumption of meats to two and a half pounds a week.

"The demand for dairy products in 1943 is expected to exceed the supply. Bread grains will be abundant.

"Altogether the nutritional value of the civilian food supply is expected to be about the same as in 1935-36. It may contain less fats, carbohydrates and vitamin A than in 1941."

The net income of farmers for next year was forecast at $10,000,000,000 to $10,500,000,000 compared with an estimated $9,800,000,000 for the present year, which was about $1,000,000,000 above the previous record in 1919.

But, the department noted, the farmers have troubles — labor, equipment, supplies, transportation and marketing.

The greatest of these problems, the department said, would be to secure adequate labor in 1943. Trends up to early October indicate agriculture might need to recruit 1,500,000 new workers next year, the department commented, adding that the additional workers may come from the ranks of women, children reaching the working age or not previously employed, townspeople, older men and others not now doing farm work.

Coroner To Probe E. J. Baly's Death

A coroner's jury this morning will investigate the death of Eniel J. Baly, 64, a printer, of 517 Winton Terrace, N. E., whose body was found in the bedroom of his home early yesterday morning, a revolver beside him.

Baly, according to a police report filed by City Detectives J. M. Austin and C. L. Taylor, was found by his wife, a bullet wound in the right temple.

In addition to his wife, Baly is survived by a daughter Mrs. J. R. Manoe; two sons, C. R. and Glider Pilot Richard E. Baly, and a sister, Mrs. O. J. Schilling.

Funeral plans will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Born in Morgan county, Wellborn had been living in Atlanta since 1890. He was a member of the Georgia Avenue Presbyterian church.

He is survived by two sons, R. S. and A. C. Wellborn; one brother, J. W. Wellborn; four grandsons, four granddaughters and 17 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Georgia Avenue Presbyterian church with the Rev. William C. Sistar officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

TRAINING COURSES START.

Leadership training courses for Girl Scouts will get under way Wednesday at Bass Junior High school, with Mrs. Virginia W. Boals, executive secretary of the Camp Fire Girls, and Mrs. J. C. Harris, of the Girl Scouts, in charge, it was announced yesterday. The training is for the purpose of preparing adult leaders for youth groups.

Agencies Draft Plan for Mailing Gifts to Prisoners of War.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A simplified procedure for mailing packages to prisoners of war and interned civilians by the next of kin or designated persons was announced today by a group of government agencies.

The plan was drafted by representatives of the State, War, Navy and Postoffice Departments, the Office of Censorship, Board of Economic Warfare and the American and International Red Cross.

The provisions allow mailing of one package every 60 days to a prisoner of war or internee whose address has been reported by the enemy. The plan is in addition to the Red Cross system of sending packages, already in operation.

The contents of each package must be listed on a Postoffice Department customs declaration form; the package must not exceed 11 pounds gross weight or be larger than 18 inches long or 42 inches in length and girth combined.

With certain exceptions, the packages may contain smoking accessories, toilet articles, clothes mending material, clothing, indestructible toys for children and games such as cards, checkers and baseballs.

The food list contains items such as processed cheese, dried fruits, cereals, dried milk, coffee, tea and cocoa.

The parcels may not contain items packaged in glass, hermetically or solder-sealed tins or collapsible tubes, nor can medical supplies be sent except vitamin tablets in cardboard containers. No written or printed matter should be put into packages.

MacArthur's Airmen Sink or Damage 7 Enemy Surface Ships

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Monday, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Continuing their methodical hammering at Japanese bases in the Solomon area, Allied bombers swept over Buin and Faisi for the fourth consecutive day Sunday, dropping 33 tons of bombs, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Buin is a town at the southern tip of Bougainville Island about 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal. Faisi is a small island south of Bougainville.

Seven ships were believed to have been sunk or damaged, the communique said, although accurate observation of results was difficult.

Night Attacks.

Continuing support of the action in the Solomons, two heavy co-ordinated night attacks were carried out by strong formations of heavy and medium Allied bombers.

The attacks were pressed home at low altitude in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire, the communique said.

Medium bombers also attacked Lae on the northeast coast of New Guinea in early morning darkness. One of our attack units was intercepted south of Lae by 20 Japanese Zeros. Three of the enemy fighters were shot down and one of our fighters failed to return.

The Allied command's noon communique:

"Northwestern sector—activity limited to reconnaissance.

"Northeastern sector:

"Buin-Faisi—in continued support of the Solomons operations, two heavy co-ordinated night attacks were executed by a strong formation of our heavy and medium units against enemy shipping. The attacks were delivered from low altitude in the face of intense antiaircraft opposition.

Lae Bombed.

Lae—Allied medium bombers made a pre-dawn attack on the airdrome, dropping 10 tons of bombs on runways and supply dump areas and dispersal bays, starting fires. A strong force of our attack units, escorted by fighters, was intercepted south of Lae by 20 Type Zero fighters. Three enemy fighters were shot down out of control, one by our attack planes and two by our fighters. One of our fighters is missing.

"Buna—An allied medium reconnaissance was intercepted by seven Zeros, but successfully fought off the enemy fighters without loss.

"Port Moresby—Three enemy aircraft lightly raided during the night. There was no damage.

Local Churchmen Welcome Pastor

Dr. James W. Middleton, now pastor of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. Middleton, yesterday afternoon received greetings of welcome from members of the church and leaders of the city.

More than 1,500 persons attended the service and heard Dr. Ryland Knight, on behalf of the Atlanta Baptists; Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, on behalf of the Atlanta Christian Council; Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist Convention, and Dr. J. B. Lawrence, executive secretary and treasurer of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, welcome Dr. and Mrs. Middleton to the city.

B. B. Barnett and other officials of the First Baptist church, presided and presented Colonel B. L. Bugg, Mrs. C. A. Pope, and Mayor Hartsfield, who spoke briefly.

and Effect a 25% Reduction in Tire Mileage

It Is Necessary for the Coal Companies and the Consuming Public to Co-operate If You Are to Receive Sufficient Coal for This Winter

ALL TRUCKS MUST CARRY CAPACITY LOADS

WHEN ORDERING COAL:

ORDER IN FULL TRUCK-LOAD LOTS IF POSSIBLE
Extra trips to your house wastes badly needed tires and trucks that must last for the duration of the war.

KEEP A WATCHFUL EYE ON YOUR COAL BIN
Give your dealer sufficient notice—place your order at least two days in advance.

DO NOT SPECIFY A CERTAIN TIME FOR DELIVERY
Deliveries cannot always be made at a specified time or on a specified day. Give your Coal Company at least two days' notice in which to deliver your coal. If you leave your home before the coal arrives, arrange with your neighbor to receive it, as regulations do not permit call backs.

AVOID PLACING RUSH ORDERS

These changes are in the public interest and are inspired by suggestions received from the Office of Defense Transportation to conserve rubber (tires) with the sole purpose of extending the life and usefulness of coal trucks for the duration and to avoid the adoption of far more drastic regulations later.

English Down 13 Nazi Bombers

CANTERBURY, Eng., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Thirteen German bombers were shot down over England last night when more than 50 enemy planes attacked Canterbury and south coast communities.

Nine German machines were destroyed by RAF fighters who went up to meet the raiders which concentrated on Canterbury at dusk yesterday. Four more were destroyed at night, when the Germans undertook low level attacks on three trains.

In the attack on the trains only one man was injured but at Canterbury 10 bodies had been recovered today and a number of persons were still missing. Seven of the known dead had been on a bus which was bombed and machinegunned.

The RAF ranged over many miles to meet the attack, and there were violent battles at sea.

A member of an RAF fighter squadron which destroyed five of the day raiders at sea said, "There was a terrific battle over the straits. There seemed to be FW-190s everywhere."

The dean of Canterbury, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, described the attack as being "very lively," and expressed the opinion the Cathedral City was hit because it figured in the news as one of the places visited by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. She was there on Friday.

"I am quite sure the German bombers had taken notice of the places Mrs. Roosevelt had visited, and that they thought if she can call on Canterbury it had better have another dose."

Rescue squads rushed from the surrounding area to help Canterbury in its second big ordeal. They worked through the night.

Six persons were killed in one street in which nearly every house was wrecked. A direct hit trapped four persons in a garage.

One witness said that a formation of three raiders flew down the main street at rooftop height, machinegunning the Saturday crowds.

one sector the Germans had succeeded in driving a wedge into Soviet positions and that the Russians had retreated to new positions after protracted fighting.

Furious Attack.

The military press went beyond this, however, and reported that the concentrated fury of German troops, tanks and dive bombers had forced the Soviets into further retreats at two places.

The Germans were thrusting at Ordzhonikidze, where the superb mountain road winds through 16,000-foot gorges for 100 airline miles to Tiflis, from which the Germans could fan out east to Baku and its oil treasures, or west to Batum near the Turkish frontier. But between, the Caucasus range is piled deep in now and studded with strong Russian defense points.

(The Germans said they overran Russian positions west of the Terek river near Nalchik after crossing several rivers. Nearer the Black sea, further Soviet strong points were reported repulsed. Nothing was said of fighting inside Stalingrad but the Germans said Russian counterattacks were resumed without success south of the city.

German Claims.

(North of Stalingrad, the Germans said they crushed several Russian battalions which tried to cross the Volga. Near Astrakan at the mouth of the Volga, 13 trains were reported bombed. The communique added that nine large transports, tankers and freighters were set afire or sunk on the Caspian.)

Red Star said the Germans had been able to concentrate superior forces around Nalchik rapidly because many roads lead to their positions from the north Caucasus. The great Caucasus mountain barrier arises just behind the Russians, hampering their supply and reinforcement problem.

One Soviet unit was reported attacked by two regiments and 40 tanks and dozens of dive bombers and retreated to new positions.

At another point, Red Star said a German detachment of 1,000 men attacked a Russian rifle battalion and penetrated behind it. It took the Russians five hours to break the encirclement and join their main forces.

Russian planes stepped up their activity in both the Nalchik and Stalingrad battles. In the Caucasus, Red bombers raided enemy reserves moving to the front in an effort to hold off the enemy until Russian ground forces could stabilize the fluid front.

Main Combat.

How far the Germans have advanced in the first week of their drive toward Ordzhonikidze was not estimated but the main combat continued to be centered in the Nalchik district.

Red Star said the force of German attacks at Stalingrad had dropped off considerably in the number of troops and tanks engaged and in intensity. Enemy artillery also was reported less active. The weakening German pressure was attributed to grave German losses without compensating ground gains.

Two German battalions made the latest attack in the northern factory section but dispatches said this was repulsed swiftly. In the last two days, Red Star estimated German losses at 2,000 dead and ten destroyed tanks.

On the southern outskirts of the city, three enemy tank attacks on a hill were reported repulsed. Northwest of Stalingrad, the Russians reported offensive patrol activity which developed into hand to hand fighting in which seven blockhouses were destroyed.

During October, Red Star said the Germans attacked the factory section continually dropping tens of thousands of bombs on the plants and workers' settlement. Artillery shelled the district systematically.

Rifle Division.

A single Russian rifle division was reported to have withstood 32 large scale attacks in 20 days killing 2,200 men and wrecking 52 tanks.

The newspaper said the German air force was showing signs of its losses in the battle for Stalingrad when it earlier had concentrated 1,000 planes against the city and made 2,000 flights daily. German aerial reserves were said to be moving into the battle from as far away as Italian Sicily. The eighth German air corps which started the campaign was reported reinforced by the first bomber squadron from the Leningrad front and the 51st bomber squadron from the central front. Some German planes had been shifted from Stalingrad to Nalchik.

German aviation was reported stripped from all fronts near Stalingrad, and air activity near Voronezh to the north was said to have virtually ceased.

Red Star said 80 German planes were downed in air combat in the week ended October 30 and that land troops confirmed the figure. A similar number was reported destroyed in the same period in raids on German airdromes.

Aerial Pounding.

Izvestia reported that the aerial pounding had so pulverized many Stalingrad streets that they were no longer recognizable, even to old inhabitants. Fire which swept the city was described by the correspondent as more terrifying than movie portrayals of the Chicago fire.

Evidence that isolated Russian troops still were operating behind the German lines in the north Caucasus was found in the communique which reported:

"East of Novorossisk an enemy company attempted to wedge our positions but was wiped out." That Black Sea naval base was taken by the Germans weeks ago.

On the frozen northwestern front between Moscow and Leningrad, two German regiments were reported repulsed in an attack on an unnamed town. Some 300 of individual units which penetrated the front lines were killed, the noon communique said.

Izvestia said the Germans had concentrated 45,000 men of the 32d, 290th and 329th infantry divisions supported by 150 field guns and dozens of planes against a small point. The attacks were repulsed, Izvestia said, and 2,000 Germans were killed or wounded over several days.

Japan's Major Solomons Blow Called Failure

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN.

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Nov. 1. (AP)—Japan's first major effort to crush American strength in the south Pacific by the recapture of Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons has failed.

From a naval viewpoint, the battle of the south Pacific October 26 turned out to be an action of attrition costly to both sides. However, it proved that the most powerful mobilization of sea, land and air forces Japan ever placed in action was insufficient to achieve its objectives, which included movement against other key American bases on communication lines to Australia.

In land action on Guadalcanal, Japanese forces more than twice the strength of American defenders have failed. The enemy, with control of the air and a superiority of land troops and artillery supported by naval bombardment, has not broken the wall of steel made by American Marines and Army troops around a small patch of some 18 square miles.

Defenders Reinforced.

While Japanese forces continue to filter down through the Solomons in landings on Guadalcanal, American defenders of the island and its important Henderson airfield likewise have been reinforced.

The situation, which as far as Guadalcanal was concerned only a few days ago appeared to be almost hopeless, now bears out the prophetic words of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the United States Pacific fleet.

"When things looked bad for our side, remember that the prospect may be, and probably is, tougher and blacker for the other fellow," Nimitz told his fighting men two months ago.

Officers who are directing operations feel today that Guadalcanal can and will be held against the enemy.

Neither on land nor sea have major forces come to close grips in battle action. The sea action October 26, like the Coral sea and Midway battles, was chiefly that of air units against surface craft.

Land action has not yet developed an all-out assault by Japanese forces, but has been confined to guerrilla-like thrusts and sneak attacks aimed at wearing down the Guadalcanal defenders, rather than to overwhelm them.

Saved Island.

The attack on Japanese sea forces October 26 by American units under the command of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey Jr., commander in the Solomon area, appeared to have saved Guadalcanal.

The Japanese naval bombardment of Guadalcanal October 13 evidently was designed to cover the landing of some 20,000 enemy troops with heavy artillery and tanks. The fact that it was not followed by a major land assault would indicate that such action was planned for the future.

The appearance of two Japanese naval task forces in the vicinity of the Stewart islands and North New Hebrides 13 days later was a screening action to permit battleships to move in for a second bombardment, which would serve as a prelude to a mass assault by Jap land troops against Guadalcanal Army and Marine defenders.

Such a move was broken up by Admiral Halsey's task force intercepting and engaging these enmey screening forces.

Beans, Potatoes Bulk Larger In the Diets of U. S. Civilians

By HUGH WILLIAMSON.

DALLAS, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The girl cashier in the grocery tucked in her shirttail, hitched up her slacks and indulged in a man-sized sigh.

"I can't help thinking it's Saturday," she said. "We've been busy like this all day."

Customers were lined up behind her counter.

Asked whether people are eating more nowadays, she said:

"It seems to me they are—particularly less expensive foods, like beans and potatoes."

Let it lie, then, the legend that only soldiers spend a big part of their time eating beans and peeling potatoes. The civilians are doing it in this war.

There are no important permanent changes in civilian eating habits, but shortages have brought about a number of substitutions.

For example, because of military and lend-lease orders, there is frequently insufficient bacon and pork to go around. Thus many persons are increasing their consumption of beef.

Some varieties of canned vegetables are scarce, with the result that grocery customers take, instead, other foods, including beans and potatoes.

Transportation schedules are likely to go askew. Six days used to be the time needed to bring goods here from California. Now the grocer may have to wait eleven or twelve days.

Coffee is getting pretty scarce, and grocers have taken steps to conserve their supply against hoarders. At some stores, customers are limited to one pound.

Other store operators put on no such limit, but try to persuade the buyers not to overstock, in view of the forthcoming rationing program.

Atlantans Pledged By Campus Groups

David Hein and Helen Marie Weill, of Atlanta, were among students at Northwestern University who were pledged to campus fraternities and sororities at the conclusion of formal rushing recently.

Miss Weill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell Weill, of 1862 Cornell road, was pledged Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority. A graduate of Druid Hills, she is a junior in Northwestern's school of liberal arts.

Hein, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hein, of 1115 Berkshire road, N. E., was pledged Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity. A graduate of Boys' High school, he is a freshman in Northwestern's school of liberal arts.

Davis Explains Reason For Not Listing Ship

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, said today he believed the Navy Department did not receive word of the actual sinking of the second United States aircraft carrier in the battle of the Solomons until after he had made a statement Wednesday that all major sinkings up to then had been announced.

All-Rail, Sub-Proof Route Completed To Central America

SUCHIATE, Mexico, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Heavily laden freight trains rolled today across a newly completed half-mile bridge spanning the Suchiate river on the Mexico-Guatemala border, opening an all-rail submarine proof route between North America and Central America's rich stores of war-vital raw materials.

This new route brought rubber, sugar, coffee, bananas and other tropical products to within four days of the United States border. It links Mexico's railroads with the Guatemalan system stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific with a branch running into El Salvador.

Shipments heretofore had to be unloaded from freight cars, carted to the banks of the Suchiate — which had no wharf—and poled across in tiny boats about twice the size of a double-bed. Then they had to be re-carted and reloaded aboard freight trains.

New Bridge.

The new bridge, permitting Mexican standard gauge equipment to cross to the Guatemalan side, makes it possible to load directly from the narrow gauge Guatemalan cars. Goods now may be carried through Guatemala and El Salvador by rail, or sent by road to Honduras.

Upon the anticipated completion of the Pan-American highway through Central America next year the bridge will provide the only rail link in the all-land route from Alaska to Panama. This will facilitate not only the movement of raw materials northward but speedy transportation of troops and munitions in the canal zone.

The bridge itself is something of a hodge-podge job, but at that it stands as a monument to Mexican engineering.

Urgent Need.

The builders, spurred by the urgent need for the bridge, threw it together in about three months at the rate of 37 feet a day. Crews were assembled from the country's rail system and they used for the most part pre-fabricated parts kept for hasty replacement of damaged bridges.

The parts were of varying size and length and when they didn't fit the workers improvised as they went along, shortening a piece here, lengthening another there by bolting pieces together.

Plans had been made for formal opening of the bridge on November 10 but a cargo congestion drove the builders to a final spurt which finished it ahead of time.

PLANT IN OPERATION.

McDONOUGH, Ga., Nov. 1.—Henry county canning plant is to be operated two days each week, in order to provide facilities for the preservation of meats. Meats will be canned each Wednesday and Saturday throughout the winter. The plant may be used any day, it is understood, but assistance will be supplied on the two regularly scheduled days.

Morgenthau Arrives On Transocean Clipper

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau arrived at La Guardia Field tonight aboard a transatlantic Clipper.

Morgenthau, who has been abroad for about three weeks, was one of 32 passengers in the ship. He was met at the airport by Harry M. Durning, collector of the Port of New York.

AT IT AGAIN—Lieutenant Clifton Clinton (extreme left) thought he was through with managing food when he left his famous "pay as you choose" restaurants in Los Angeles to join the Army. But he's again running a restaurant—one with khaki-clad "employes"—the 24th General Hospital Mess Hall at Fort Benning, Ga. Here he is in action talking with a cook and two "customers."

Restaurateur Asked Action, Got Mess Hall

Californian Is Popular With Hungry Soldiers at Ft. Benning.

Lieutenant Clifton Clinton, mess officer for Fort Benning's (Ga.) General hospital, is convinced you can't escape your past.

A veteran of the last war, Lieutenant Clinton signed up for service with tanks or the infantry, but since he was formerly the proprietor and originator of the well-known "golden rule" restaurants in Los Angeles, he can't seem to escape the Army's culinary department.

It was the policy in Clinton's restaurants, the Pacific Seas and the Brookdale, that customers be allowed to eat and pay, or eat and walk out, just as they chose. Clinton became so famous for his restaurants he was withdrawn from Camp Barkeley, Tex., and sent to Bakers' and Cooks' school, and from there to officers' candidate school in medical administration.

When he finally was transferred to the 24th General hospital, he thought he was on the way to seeing some action, but the first thing he knew he was a mess officer.

"And why not?" chorus the chow-hounds of the 24th. Since he's been at Benning he's streamlined his mess hall, cutting the service time for 800 hungry soldiers down to 18 minutes, and in the time saved, has painted the walls of the rooms, added pictures here and there, and, of all things, installed two canaries.

Red Cross Chapters To Confer on War Funds

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 1. — Twenty-five Red Cross chapters in north Georgia have been invited to send delegations to a war fund conference to be held at the federal court room in Rome tomorrow, it was announced by J. J. McDonough, chairman of the local chapter, which will act as host to the conference.

Chapters asked to send delegates include the following: Atlanta, Bartow county, Carroll county, Catoosa county, Cedartown, Chattooga county, Cherokee county, Cobb county, Dade county, Dalton, DeKalb county, Douglas county, Fannin county, Gilmer county, Gordon county, Haralson county, Lindale, Murray county, Paulding county, Pickens county, Rockmart, Rome, Trion, Union county and Walker county.

Grandfather, 43, Called To Army for 3d Time

SCOTT FIELD, Ill., Nov. 1.—(AP) A 43-year-old grandfather, Archibald (Rusty) Smith, has been called to the Army—the third time he has served the nation's armed forces.

At 16 he helped chase Pancho Villa through Mexico. A year later he became a sailor for World War I. This time he's a student at the Radio Technical school here.

Two sons, the eldest of whom has two youngsters of his own, are "somewhere in the Pacific"—one in the Navy, the other in the Army.

Cardinal Asks For Sacrifices In War Effort will be the choice prize of despoilers. We shall have bayonets at our throats and the muzzles of muskets pressed against our heads. If one wishes to picture our fate he has only to look at what has taken place, and is taking place, in the conquered parts of Europe."

"We ourselves must shape the future of our country. . . . To do so unity and sacrifice are needed. . . . To win the victory our entire people, like a single unit, must fight shoulder to shoulder under our commander in chief.

"We will never yield to the greed, the treachery, the cruelty of our foes."

Bishop Lamb, citing Washington's example at Valley Forge, declared: "We must set up here at home a second front of prayer," and added "a nation on its knees will do more than men and guns to win this war and to secure a just and lasting peace."

Wearing the scarlet and ermine robes of his ecclesiastical office, Cardinal Dougherty spoke from the red-carpeted stage of the main auditorium on which had been erected an altar surmounted by a huge canopy. A few moments before, from his throne on the left of the altar, he had pronounced a papal benediction on the throng.

Seated before him were many notables, including Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, Attorney General Francis Biddle, Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts of the supreme court, Governor Arthur H. James, of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Manuel Quezon, wife of the president of the Philippine commonwealth.

Navy Chaplain's Proud Parents Try To Hear Ammunition Song

HADDONFIELD, N. J., Nov. 1. (AP)—The proud parents of a husky Navy chaplain were twisting the dials of their radio today hoping to hear the country's No. 1 song, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition."

Not until last night did Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Forgy, of Haddonfield, learn that their son, Lieutenant Howell Forgy, 34, former Muskingum (Ohio) College football star, was the author of that famous fighting phrase which came out of the hell of Pearl Harbor as America's popular battle cry.

"We have never heard the song on the radio," the chaplain's mother admitted today. "It does sound a bit like him, though, for he was always one to turn a poetic phrase—often in his letters home."

The Forgys were a bit overwhelmed by the news that Howell coined the "pass the ammunition" phrase, especially because he was somewhat of a pacifist before deciding to join the Navy in September, 1940.

"His pacifistic ideas were changed a lot when Hitler invaded small European neighbors," Mrs. Forgy said. "I believe they were discarded entirely after Pearl Harbor."

The Forgys have not seen their son for more than three years. He was in California for a few days in January, and his wife, the former Alma Louise Morgan, of Princeton, Ky., met him there.

Three weeks ago she presented him with a son, Michael.

The father is also in the thick of the war, as superintendent of a Philadelphia boiler firm working on war orders.

"We thought last night when we received the news by telephone that it was a Hallowe'en prank," the parents said. "But apparently it's all true and we are very happy and proud."

New Business Prohibited by Canada's Order

Many Firms Frozen at Present Status Except by Permit.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A vast range of Canadian business establishments are "frozen" at their present status under a drastic prices board order, effective tomorrow, which prohibits creation of new selling outlets, stocking of lines of goods not already handled and removal to larger premises, except under permit.

The establishment of new businesses is forbidden except by permit to be granted only in exceptional circumstances.

All transfers of ownership are made subject to permit which, the board said, will be granted in bona fide cases of sale or gift.

Purpose of the order is to prevent the multiplying of existing outlets at a time when supplies are becoming more restricted.

Extent of Order.

Donald Gordon, board chairman, said the view is taken that—except in a comparatively few special cases—existing businesses can adequately handle the available supply of goods and services.

The order applies alike to manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and 10 types of service businesses. Full information is being mailed by the board to the operators of all businesses concerned.

Exempted from the order are:

1. Sales of newspapers, magazines or periodicals;

2. Any undertaking operated by the dominion government or any province, or any agency thereof;

3. Religious, charitable, philanthropic and educational organizations:

4. Farmers, hunters, trappers, gardeners, livestock producers, poultry producers or fishermen, in respect to the sale of their products in the natural state or after processing by them, except when they operate in an urban retail place of business other than a stall in a market;

Boarding Houses.

5. Operators of private boarding houses, in respect to the supplying of meals and refreshments;

6. Supplying of goods or services to the munitions department or agency thereof, and the operator of a new business formed and carrying on for such purpose;

7. The sale of goods or supplying of meals, refreshments or beverages in canteens or messes within the limits of military establishments.

The 10 types of service business covered by the freezing order are:

Warehousing and storage; undertaking and embalming; laundering and dry cleaning; hairdressing and beauty parlor services; plumbing and heating; painting and decorating; supplying meals, refreshments and beverages; renting and exhibiting motion pictures; any manufacturing process performed on custom or commission basis, and slaughtering.

Mrs. Hobby Says Visit to Great Britain Real 'Eye-Opener'

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, after a strenuous week of inspection of the service work and training of British women's auxiliary forces, said today she had seen "lots which we will utilize the WAAC's.

Mrs Hobby, director of the United States WAAC, said her visit had been "a real eye-opener." Her deepest impression, she said, was "the devotion with which thousands of women are doing difficult war jobs under trying circumstances."

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 2, 1942.

Hitler and France

There is high probability, according to many trained observers, that Hitler and his Nazi forces will seize unoccupied France before the end of this year.

Pierre Laval has as yet been unable to meet German demand for delivery of 150,000 French workers for German industry. Already that puppet of the Vichy regime has been granted two delays by his masters at Berlin. Even though he is granted further delay in making good this demand, it is practically certain he will fail to deliver. Nevertheless, to meet that demand is the only way in which Laval can hold his job, which is entirely dependent upon Hitler's continued consent.

Another change in the Vichy government, such as displacement of Laval by Jacques Doriot, would undoubtedly result in fresh outbreaks by the people of unoccupied France, outbreaks which Doriot could not hope to control. Furthermore, it would probably increase the unrest and sabotage in the occupied regions of France, thus putting further strain on German policing and the requirements for troops of occupation.

If the recently opened campaign of the Allied Nations in Africa achieves the expected goal, a new threat to Hitler's Europe will loom. For that goal is complete control of the southern shores of the Mediterranean. Once Rommel's forces are eliminated, this would be easy to accomplish. And, in control of the entire North African coast, the Allies would constitute a very real threat, from a new direction, against the Axis. There might well be an invasion of Italy, which would form a second front of dire import for the Nazis.

Hitler is therefore expected to seize all of France in order to be in better position to block any Allied offensive through Spain and Portugal, or to be in better position, from the French Mediterranean coastline, to block Allied attempts to move northwestward along the African coast.

Of course, the disarmed French could oppose no resistance worth the name to any move by Hitler to take over all of their unhappy country.

All of which sums up to further evidence that the North African campaign constitutes just about the most important, from the potentialities involved, of any now under way around the world.

Mexican "Gallup"

Of more than casual interest to persons in the United States is the formation in Mexico City of a National Institute of Public Opinion of Mexico by a group of professional and intellectual men. It is significant to note that until the formation of this group a medium of social analysis in the modern sense has been lacking in Mexico. It is anticipated the new organization will supply that need.

The fact outstanding men are included in the organization augurs well for its future. The group includes men from literary, political, intellectual and journalistic fields. This is varied enough to give all elements of Mexico a voice in this new science of public opinion. The model for the group will be the method used by Dr. Gallup, whose polls are a regular feature of The Constitution.

More and more persons are coming to the realization that the straw vote and the public opinion poll are genuine adjuncts to the democratic process. Solely on this basis, the work of the new body in Mexico is bound to be of political and sociological importance.

Despite the Potomac overflow, no case is reported of a Washington bureaucrat getting wet if he kept the feet on a desk.

Not Good Enough

Traffic fatalities for the nation during the first nine months of 1942, dropped 24 per cent, according to statistics of the National Safety Council. At the same time it was reported that traffic was 13 per cent less than for a like period last year.

At first glance this looks like an excellent showing but, as a matter of fact, it is far from what should be in a nation at war.

We of the eastern states who have been gasoline and tire rationed for months are apt to look upon our own highways and think that automobile traffic outside of the centers of population has almost disappeared.

As a matter of fact, though they go in force in November, there have been no restrictions on the use of gasoline in a majority of the states as yet. If the traffic reduction all over the nation was in proportion to that in Georgia, for instance, the figure would be far larger than 13 per cent.

However, disregarding percentages entirely, the fact remains that 21,290 persons have been killed in traffic mishaps in this country in nine months. That the total for the same nine months of 1941 was 27,900 does not lessen the tragedy of this year's figures.

More than twenty-one thousand Americans have been taken out of the service of their country at a time when the service of everyone is vitally important to the successful prosecution of the war. They are soldiers, workers, leaders, who can never return. They have gone, forever.

Think, for a moment, what our reaction would be to learn that such a number of American troops had been slain by the enemy, without a single casualty among his forces to offset the blow. Think how stunned the nation would be should we awake, some morning, to learn that an enemy air raid had taken 21,290 lives in one of our great cities.

Yet the toll taken by traffic is just as serious, just as hard a blow.

And the added tragedy is that there are no unpreventable accidents. There is a cause for everyone and the cause of them all most prolific of death is carelessness.

Their Special Problem

The farmers of the nation are facing a special, and very serious problem in scarcity of farm labor owing to the demands of war through the armed services and war industries. That steps will be taken to solve this problem is inevitable, inasmuch as maintenance, even increase, of food production is an essential of the war effort.

However, as pointed out in a letter from Tuskegee Institute, the famous educational center for Negroes in Alabama, the problems caused by war have borne with special weight upon a large segment of Negro farm families in the south. This is true both among Negro farmers who operate their own lands and upon those who are tenant farmers.

The draft of Negroes from these farms has been heavy. Many others are working in war production plants and still others, lured by reports of nigh wages, have drifted to the urban centers. Many of these are unskilled and unable to find employment as they expected, are still drifting. That they should be urged to return to the farms is, of course, evident, but it takes time to teach that lesson, even after they have been reached.

The result of all this is that, in many cases, only women, aged and dependent relatives and young children are left to work on the farms.

Tuskegee points out that, under these circumstances, Negro farm children in the south this year face a particularly bleak Christmas season. Large proportion will be in serious want, hungry and cold through the coming winter. The opportunity for the exercise of the spirit of the Good Samaritan, by both white and Negro people who are able to give to meet a little, at least, of this need, is exceptional.

Clothing, books, toys, candy, pictures, or money with which these things can be purchased, will go far to make Christmas real for many a Negro child in a home ruled by extreme poverty. Such gifts should be sent to F. D. Patterson, president, at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

Georgia Editors Say:

WAR "GYP" SCHEMES.
(From The Albany Herald)

War has brought about many changes in our American way of living but has not yet put an end to the nefarious schemes which racketeers use to "gyp" people. To the contrary, it has suggested many new tricks that are based on wartime conditions. The National Better Business Bureau has listed many of these which are being worked under the guise of patriotism. The list of schemes is a lengthy one, too voluminous for reproduction here, but a few samples will give an idea of their character:

Gyp salesmen selling metal tags as necklaces or bracelets, claiming that the law requires all citizens to wear such identification.

Phony air-raid wardens selling fire extinguishers from house to house, representing that the government requires all householders to have at least on extinguisher on hand.

Itinerant fake service men who obtain radios, vacuum cleaners, and other appliances from unsuspecting housewives on the pretext of repairing them in co-operation with the government's "War on Waste" program, but do not bring the appliances back.

The best way to protect oneself against these "gyp" artists is to suspect any of them who base their sales appeals on our war effort in any manner, shape, or form. The Better Business Bureau gives good advice when it urges:

"You can help to protect yourself and others by reporting any such activity which may come to your attention." Let the local police know and they will quickly get in behind these fakers.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

ELECTION IN WARTIME WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—There is something refreshing in the fact that of all the nations in the world now at war we on Tuesday will be the first to hold a national election in keeping with regular democratic processes.

In none of the other belligerent countries, so far as the record shows, has there been an election since the outbreak of war. The Axis dictator countries have never made a practice of consulting the people over the management of governmental affairs. Such elections as they have held in the past were conducted under methods of duress, wherein a free expression of the people was denied.

Even in England, one of the oldest and most stable democracies of them all, elections by common consent have been suspended for the duration. The complexion of parliament has been fixed for an indefinite period.

Only the United States among the great democracies of the world is going ahead with its usual elective processes. The fact that we are holding an election Tuesday should be the final answer to those who have accused the Roosevelt administration of aspiring to a dictatorship and others who have doubted the ability of a democracy to function efficiently in time of war.

The election follows a campaign of the greatest public apathy seen in the country in years. Indications are that an exceedingly low vote will be recorded. Registration figures are off in practically all of the states. Several obvious reasons may be partly responsible for this: enlistments in the armed services, migration of labor from one jurisdiction to another, and general preoccupation with the war which leads people to take less interest in political campaigns.

NO GREAT ISSUE Another reason probably is that no outstanding issue has developed in the campaign. At the time of Pearl Harbor it appeared that the isolationist question would dominate the 1942 campaign. It has figured to a certain extent, but nothing like what was predicted in the beginning. About as many isolationists have been renominated as were defeated. The people have indicated a disinterestedness in the issue, except in isolated cases, and have given a prior rating to the common pledge of candidates for an all-out effort to win the war.

The congressional campaign has provided no issue worthy of the name. Hence the election will probably turn on some of the minor questions and criticisms which ordinarily occupy the fringe of our biennial political discussions.

Foremost among these is the dissatisfaction of the public over the various restrictive measures that have been taken in the prosecution of the war—gas, rubber, sugar rationing and the like.

Also the natural tendency of the public to express dissatisfaction over our setbacks in the early stages of the war—many defeats and few victories.

SOME MINOR ISSUES Some of the specific subjects which have assumed the proportion of minor issues are higher taxes, extension of the draft act to cover 18-year-olds, price ceilings on farm commodities, and the administration's handling of the labor problem.

No party label can properly be attached to any of these problems, because the action taken was supported by Democrats and Republicans alike. Nevertheless, the Democrats are expected to bear the brunt of any opposition vote cast on these questions, since they are the party in power and the tendency will be to hold the administration responsible.

An effort has been made to raise an issue of the charge of bungling in the war effort. It has not gotten very far. There has been some bungling, to be sure, but not in the exaggerated scope charged by political opponents of the administration. In any war program involving the expenditure of billions and billions of dollars—more money, in fact, than was spent in the entire history of the government before Pearl Harbor—a certain amount of loose motion is bound to occur.

NO UNDUE BUNGLING But there is no justification for calling it bungling. On the whole the war program up to now seems to have been administered about as efficiently as we have a right to expect, considering the vast magnitude of operations.

If there has been bungling of a degree, it is not proper to charge it to the Democratic party because of the responsible business executives who have been brought into the government to run the War Production Board and other war agencies fully 80 per cent of them supported Mr. Willkie in the last presidential campaign. They are supposed to be the brains of the nation's industrial and business organizations.

NO UPSET LIKELY None of the complaints or criticisms heard in the campaign seem to be of sufficient importance, individually or collectively, to justify any upset in the present political scheme of things. They may influence the action of a number of voters, but they offer nothing which the public can seize upon in justification for a repudiation of the Roosevelt administration by returning a Republican majority in congress.

Consequently, there is nothing to indicate that the election will provide any upset of startling proportions. Indications are that the Republicans will be confined to a gain of between 15 and 20 seats in the house and four or five at the outside in the senate, control of which is not in dispute.

That would be something of a normal procedure—neither a Democratic upset nor a Republican victory. It would leave both houses pretty much as they are now and have been for the past several years.

SILHOUETTES

A Puzzling Problem

See where Governor Talmadge expresses the idea that Forrest Turner, perhaps Georgia's most notorious criminal and prison-escape artist, should be pardoned from the 100 years or more of prison sentences now against him, so he can join the armed forces and fight for the nation.

Turner, in a letter to the Governor, blames his predicament on "boyish escapades" which got him into a life of crime before he was old enough to know better and the alleged inability to go straight because he was too deeply involved by the time he was old enough to have acquired sense.

And the Governor seems to take the attitude that Turner is "just an adventurous boy" at heart and really a quite decent fellow. He has never killed anyone, in the course of his numerous holdups, anyway, says the Governor.

All of which raises an interesting question:

"Should convicted criminals be allowed to fight for their nation? Should the ban on their enlistment be lifted after they have served their prison terms, paid their debt to society? Or, even, should they be permitted to leave prison, on condition they are accepted into the armed services?"

I Don't Know.

Frankly, I don't know the answer. Theoretically, I can answer part of the question, yes. But practically, I don't know.

Theoretically, when a man has paid his debt, has served his full term, he should be restored to the privileges he abandoned when he committed his crime. The debt is paid in full, isn't it? Well, then, wipe it off the record.

That is theory, insofar as discharged prisoners are concerned. It doesn't apply to the suggestion of turning them loose before their terms are completed.

But, in practice, there are innumerable problems.

In the first place, do you want to run the risk of placing truly criminally inclined men side by side with our own sons and neighbors, the fine boys who have volunteered, or been drafted, to the high honor of serving their country as fighting men? Many parents would hesitate on this point. Many would resent it, I know.

To avoid this problem, it has been suggested that convicts and ex-convicts be segregated into special battalions, or other units of the Army. That they be specially designated, under some title that would reveal just who and what they are.

Many historic precedents are advanced in favor of this idea. Its advocates point to the great record made by the prisoners from Andersonville, when they were released to fight during the War Between the States. And there is mention of the French Foreign Legion, traditionally formed of the 'forgotten men," including many criminals and ex-convicts, of all nations.

But it seems to me such a regiment, division or battalion, formed exclusively of criminals and ex-convicts — I differentiate because not all ex-convicts are criminals, by any means—would provide a difficult problem of control and training. And what locality would desire it placed in its midst?

I can't answer the question. My sympathies for the men in prison are warm. If you doubt this, refer to my column of yesterday, Sunday. But I realize the problems in the way.

A Little Anecdote.

All of which reminds me of a story, which really has but slight bearing on the subject, told me by my son, now in the A. E. F. in Northern Ireland.

When he was first inducted into the Army at Fort McPherson, the boy who slept on the adjoining barracks cot to his, for a few days, was from the north Georgia mountains. This boy had been under arrest on a charge of illegal whisky making, at the time his draft number was called. And the authorities had turned him loose, without trial, so he could answer the call to the Army.

And the youngster—he was in his early twenties—freely told of his experiences as a moonshiner. He also told what he planned to do after he got outo fthe Army. (This was before the war began and they all expected only one year in the service.)

So this young moonshiner was going to save all his Army pay, and with the capital thus accumulated, buy and equip, "the biggest —— —— still in all the Georgia mountains."

Funny? In a sense. But tragic, too. The mercy shown that boy bore no fruit of repentance or reform. The only hope is that his Army experience may instill some better sense and greater moral understanding into him.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Friday, November 2, 1917:

"New York, Nov. 1.—Measures to prevent 'vicious' short selling in the stock market, attributed in some quarters to German interest as part of an organized propaganda to create pessimism, were taken today by the board of governors of the stock exchange."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Wanted: A Big Man NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—There must be some man in the United States, some big man who knows that our sort of freedom can continue only under our kind of capitalism, who can win the confidence of labor and create a working co-operation between labor and management and have done with strikes and hearings and the constant wrangling and suspicion.

To be constructive, I would nominate Henry Kaiser, who seems to be large and loose of mind and a man whom labor could trust.

The old union leaders, including the young organizers and agitators of the era of strife under the New Deal, are disqualified for various reasons. John Lewis, of course, is out, not only because he is old-style but because he has shown himself to be a ruthless dictator, as his old associates of the CIO, who used to praise his name, now agree. He cannot be trusted with power. Will Green would be less dangerous than Lewis because he is not an adventurer, but he has no imagination and would only be the same old Bill Green who made such a mess of the AFL and made the workers distrustful of his kind of unionism, which permits racketeering and the exploitation and robbery of both worker and employer. Green can't change.

Murray of the CIO is committed, too. He is a class-conflict man dedicated to the proposition that employer and worker are enemies.

Most Have Religion Employers as a group don't hate workers as a group, although they have reason to distrust many of the union leaders. Most of them, I think, have got religion now and want to be respectabilized in the community and get along with the men and women who do the jobs that make the profits that go back into action as taxes and later will go back into action as taxes and later will go back as new plants making new jobs.

In any big plant today the executive in the oak-paneled office will have a son in the Solomons or Britain or Egypt alongside the son of the man or woman at the machine in the works and perhaps serving under him. There is no immunity for the sons of the rich or the well-paid, nor have they been slower to fight than the sons of the employes.

I suggest Mr. Kaiser with no idea that he would drop all that he is doing to become the leader of a new labor organization, or take on those duties in addition, but rather as a man whose ideas and influence, if he could win the people's attention, would point out the waste and futility of strife between the front office and the shop. Much, and I should say, most of the strife in the years of the New Deal has been unnecessary and artificial. Management has been harassed by organizers and government agents on the most childish issues, and the government's attitude has been unmistakably hostile to management and has encouraged professional trouble makers, called organizers and stewards, to kick up trouble unnecessarily and call out the workers in whipped-up races over trivialities.

Petty Grievances Sulkers of the guardhouse lawyer type, who know their rights, run to the law over petty grievances that should be settled with a few words between men of good will on both sides, without the intervention of some government official who should have better things to do with his time. Many of the strikes, and some of the most violent ones, of the '30s, which left labor and management both sullen and distrustful, were organizational strikes called by minorities, planted by union agents, which refused to be counted in any election and raised hell until the workers, who wanted no part of the union, were terrorized into joining.

But this bad feeling certainly could be abated and might be overcome by some man having the public confidence, as I think Henry Kaiser has. He builds big and he thinks big and he is right when he says that people like to work and are miserable when they are out of work. It would be hard to imagine him tying up any of his great jobs, stopping production and throwing people out of work over a question whether one workman had a right to smoke.

Of course, he is no less subject to a jurisdictional strike than the meanest and most legalistic employer, but what I am getting at is not his own relations with labor and unions in his own jobs but his attitude toward workers, capital, management, the job, opportunity and, right now, the need to forget past attitudes on both sides, to deal fairly on both sides and win the war.

He is a big new personality among us who wants to be doing and ain't sore at nobody and, given a hearing on labor relations, could do great good. He is one hell of a man.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

AFTERNOON OF BAD NEWS CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 30. (By Mail)—I was in Cambridge and walking along Garden street when a newspaper boy came by with the headlines telling the bad news from the Solomons.

I walked on down to Harvard Square to meet a man with whom I had an engagement.

He had an automobile. And a "B" card.

"Let's drive out to Concord," I said.

"It's against the rules for pleasure driving," he said.

"This isn't for pleasure," I said. "I have been there twice before. But I want to go back for another reason."

So we went. We drove fast because there was not much time available for the trip.

At Concord we drove down to the old battlefield. It is just that—a field. There is a very pretty stream there. The lilies in it are dead. The grass along its banks is spotted with the brown which frost brings.

It was across this steam that the raw farmers of Concord stared at the men in red coats sent against them. It was here the shot was fired that ran around the world.

We looked at the statue there. We saw the tomb of the English soldiers who died there in the scattering, ragged shooting that went on.

I can feel the beginnings of the Revolution, the world's first great war for liberty, better at Concord and Lexington than I can any other place. We stood there on the old field, thinking. It was quiet and peaceful. No one else was there. Far away a dog barked. There was no other sound.

CHRIST CHURCH When we got back to Cambridge we walked to the spot where the men gathered to set out for Bunker Hill.

Nearby was Christ church, built well before the Revolution. Washington worshiped there in 1775. Later on he kept some of his troops there part of one bitter winter.

Most of its members left, when the Revolution came, and went to Nova Scotia. The membership was torn by the war. In its graveyard, adjoining, one may read the inscriptions on the tombs of the men who died fighting for liberty.

There were those who went into the church to kneel down and pray.

The news made all faces solemn.

The faces of the young men in uniform were solemn.

Yet all about us there seemed to me a feeling of strength because here about us was where it began, here lived some of the men who marched to Lexington and to Bunker Hill.

The sense of the historic was all about us.

It is well to recall that war. This one is not going well. That one did not go well until the last weeks of its long-drawn-out cruelty and disaster. There was failure after failure. There was defeat after defeat. There were no bright days. It was one dark day after another, one dark month after month, year after year.

Today we like to think of the brightness of it.

There was not much brightness until the end.

It was the strength of an idea that kept that stubborn army in the field. It was not trained. Its officers were not good. It had its traitors. The people at home did not support the war as well as they might have.

The congress was vacillating, weak and critical. It would not support the war. Washington railed at it.

There were those who wanted to make peace, to surrender and go back again to the status of a colony.

The stubborn strength of an idea kept the war going. And won it.

THE REAL STRENGTH The same idea will keep this one going. It is apparent we have made grave errors in the Pacific. Our one offensive effort of the war has been halted. We have lost considerable strength on sea and land.

It is again the same old story of "too little, too late."

It is unfortunate. It is tragic. It makes the nation heart-sick. It will bring new criticism, new prophets of doom.

We will go on.

The stubborn strength of an idea will keep us going.

The forces against us are strong and will not lack for supplies, for men, for friends.

They die and fight with bravery as great as that of our own. They have confidence because they have not failed.

They had enough, and they had it at the right time because they worked at it for seven years while we were talking of peace and an end of wars. They have developed the greatest machines of war the world has ever seen.

An unprepared American and an unprepared United States are going ahead slowly and not at all surely. We are finding, as did England, that some of our Army and Navy officers still are thinking in terms of 1914. We have had to change commands on land and on sea.

So has England. So has Germany.

Our greatest strength, that carries us on through bad leadership and defeat is the same stubborn idea which made the farmer militia shoot at the soldiers across the stream of Concord; the same which made them stand at Lexington and say, "If they mean to have a war, let it begin here"; the same which kept them going through Valley Forge. The same which kept them going through all the dark days and months and years until victory was won.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The popularity of quiz programs and mental tests printed in magazines and books indicates that Americans enjoy checking up on their store of knowledge.

The ordinary, reasonably well-informed American, though not at all vain of his learning, takes it for granted that he "knows everything." Of course, he makes no such boast, but he tackles every test with confidence and is surprised and chagrined when he finds a question he can't answer. If he mispronounces or misspells a word, or locates the Cape of Good Hope on the wrong continent, he is embarrassed and ashamed.

In view of this attitude, it is astonishing how much misinformation we carry in stock and treasure and defend as something of value.

Our ignorance is not mere lack of knowledge, which is easily cured, but the more dangerous and more stubborn ignorance of knowing things that are not true. An empty space can be filled, but the truth cannot be forced into a complacent mind until a way is found to eject the fallacy that occupies it.

All of us "know" things that aren't so; and the farther wrong we are, the more ardently we defend our error.

A young flying officer, now in England, recently said to a reporter: "I was surprised to find England so large, for I had always pictured it as a tight little island.

"The English surprised me, too. I expected to find them all painfully reserved, but they cut up and rough-house more than our fellows do.

"But what surprises me most is the jaunty courage of these RAF fellows. Like a lot of people in my section back home, I thought the English did their best fighting going backward, but I'm ashamed of that now. These flyers have more real guts than anybody else in the world."

That is a fair sample of homemade ignorance. He had been carrying around three wrong ideas—three pieces of misinformation that he treasured in his store of knowledge. It was much as though he had believed the Amazon in France, the Boer a domesticated quadruped, and the dolphin an ancient French title.

The facts in school books are a part of education, but the ignorance that is now most deplorable is ignorance of current events and current facts. The illiterate are as well educated as those who are proud of their knowledge but have it all wrong.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Election Day: Yes, Sir, a Real One With Candidates

Tomorrow, as you probably have forgotten, is national election day, in Georgia as elsewhere.

We are expected to elect a Governor and other state-house officers and a string of congressmen. The President is not on the ticket, this being an off year, or you'd have heard more about election day.

This must all be most bewildering to a visitor from a furrin country. In September he would have observed all Georgia suffering the throes of politics. He would have listened to the radio and read the papers and discovered a New Deal had set in at the state capitol. He would have remarked that that was that and assumed it was all over.

But no. Here comes the first Tuesday in November and the "official" election. Our visitor from Patagonia would learn that the primary really didn't count. It was just a family affair, confined to white Democrats. True, they might be white Republicans in national politics, but that wouldn't hurt them. Besides, they wouldn't go around bragging about it.

As a matter of record, all is not over, technically. D. Talmadge Bowers, of Elberton, is running as an independent candidate for Governor and if he gets more votes than Ellis Arnall he will win and all our efforts will have gone for naught. I have nothing against Mr. Bowers, of Elberton, who probably is a nice fellow and good to his folks, but I hereby issue a clarion call to our rockribbed Democracy to go to the polls tomorrow and cast their ballots for the party nominees. It is entirely possible, in theory at least, that one of these independents is some day going to round up a couple of dozen cousins and nephews and give Georgia a shock that will rock Stone Mountain and cause a tidal wave at St. Simons. Because nobody else bothers to vote.

In Them Thar Hills

I think there's a declared Republican out for congress up in the mountains — around Blue Ridge and Tate and Ellijay. He might have a chance, at that. That region has been more or less Republican since before the War Between the States, when there were men in both armies and even more skiing to the hills.

Coming nearer home, our own Harry Alexander has announced for congress to succeed Bob Ramspeck, who defeated Jere Wells in the primary and should be entitled to a rest. Though he has not felt impelled to leave Washington flat on its back and come home to mend his fences and take to the stump.

Being nothing of a psychologist, I cannot figure out why Mr. Alexander delights to run for congress as an independent. I know him very well and like and admire him very much. This, I think, is either his second or third venture. Certainly, he is no fanatic. He is a gentleman of large financial resources and a pleasant manner and would be an ornament to Washington — and probably a much better than average statesman.

But, in the interests of the party, I am urging one and all to go to the polls and vote for the anointed candidates. I'd do it myself, except that I've promised to see a man about a dog.

Yellow Jackets

Few days ago this column printed an offer from a man in Madison to buy all yellow jacket nests in Morgan county or thereabouts. I wondered why.

I was just that dumb. Letters and telephone calls—one long distance, which was prepaid, I hope—explained that ardent fishermen desire yellow jacket nests because of the larvae they contain. Larvae, I understand, means unborn yellow jackets. And they're the finest bait for bream known to science. The fisherman accumulates a few nests and puts them on ice, to retard development, until he's ready to go fishing. Which he usually is.

Just how bream, which are spawned in water and live there until caught or old age creeps upon them, know how good unborn yellow jackets taste is beyond me. Why does a cat, born in a basement, constitutionally opposed to water or even wet feet, prefer fish to any form of nutriment? A kitten who's never been nearer a stream than the flow from a kitchen sink can read the label on a can of salmon and go rolling over and over in sheer delight. We had a kitten once who found the can opener and brought it to us just after we'd returned from the grocery. Oh well, she would have brought the can opener if she could have found it. I have been requested to check up on facts in this department.

And a lady out on the south side called up to say she has a large and most unwelcome nest of yellow jackets in her backyard, right beside her favorite outdoor seat when the weather is right, and that she has been stung on both wrists and an elbow—and other places. She refused to give more details. And she wondered if this advertiser in Morgan county would care to come up and collect it, cash and carry, except no cash.

Only one thing I could do was suggest she write the Morgan county man. Maybe he'll think a good, vigorous nest of yellow jackets is worth wear on tires and gasoline guage. I wouldn't—but then I'm no fisherman.

RAMSEY TO SPEAK.

Ralph Ramsey, executive secretary of the Georgia Educational Association, will address Atlanta Masonic Club, No. 151, at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Davison's tearoom.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

MAJOR LECRAW.

Early this year, Mayor Roy LeCraw, of Atlanta, answered the call of his country for active duty with the Army, resigning his post as Mayor and accepting again his commission as major. All he had to do was change the letter "y" in his title to "j." No, that was not all. He had to say good-bye to his wife and his four fine sons. He had to leave his business, which he had built up over a period of two decades. He had to leave the wide circle of influence which his Christian life had made for him. But Roy LeCraw didn't whimper. Like every true American who has been called into the armed services, he took it in stride. He had much to live for here, but he fully realized that all the cherished blessings of our way of life were endangered by the threat of totalitarianism, and he was ready to defend these principles at any cost.

The Thursday afternoon mail last week brought a letter from Major LeCraw:

"Dear Louie: I have just read your article in The Atlanta Constitution, dated September 4, and it reminded that I wanted to write you a line to wish you continued success and usefulness in your work in Atlanta. I have been over here in this theater of war for two months, and it doesn't get any easier to be away from loved ones and friends, but as I see it, this war is a war for liberty and religious freedom, and I am glad, therefore, even at great personal sacrifice, to have a part in it.

"I trust you are well and that your work is going along satisfactorily. When you have time would appreciate a letter giving me the news about the old home town, which I shall appreciate more than ever when I get back to it again. Found a fine old Scotch Presbyterian church over here. Kindest regards and good wishes. Sincerely, Roy LeCraw."

Almost every mail brings a V letter from some one of the many men from my church or intimate associates in foreign service, and, like Major LeCraw, they everyone sound the same fine note of dedication to the high and worthy cause for which we are at war. I keep all the letters from the men of our church in what we call the Book of Remembrance, and we have pictures of these men in the book, which has now become a two-volume treasure. Some day this collection of letters and photographs will be priceless. Indeed, if you ask me, it is priceless now. It is real history.

By the way, returning to Major LeCraw's fine letter, let us say to him here in the column, what I have said in my personal reply to his much appreciated letter, that he will find in The Constitution's Sunday letter, "Dear Buddy," just about the finest resume of the news of the old home town imaginable. Whoever does that feature has, I know, the unanimous thanks of all our men in the service, even as he or she has the thanks of all of us here at home.

Every best wish, Major Roy!

WPB Suggests Saving of Gas To Check Winter Shortage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The War Production Board cautioned today that the demands of war industries and a scarcity of oil and coal may result in a serious gas shortage in homes this winter unless householders watch their stoves and heating plants.

A WPB statement said increasing use of gas by war industries was "reducing the reserve margins of many gas companies to a point where actual shortages may occur during cold weather unless domestic gas consumption is reduced."

Explaining that the situation existed both for natural and manufactured gas, WPB explained that "manufactured gas is made from oil and coal, both of which must be transported to gas plants over rail lines already badly crowded with war materials, supplies and troops."

WPB made a series of suggestions for gas conservation. Those covering house heating included many of the recommendations for conservation made in connection with fuel oil heat—a check by experts to get correct burner adjustment, making the house as nearly air-tight as possible to keep heat in, keeping temperature at 65 degrees except in rooms occupied by children, the aged or invalids.

For cooking purposes, it was recommended that a "low blue flame, not yellow" be used for efficiency. Other suggestions: Cook more "one-dish" meals; be sure burners are kept clean; don't use the gas range oven or top burners to heat the kitchen or provide auxiliary heat to the rest of the home.

In using gas for water heating, WPB said, see that leaky faucets are repaired, don't run water while washing but use the drain stop, insulate pipes and tanks, maintain a water temperature of 120 to 150 degrees.

About gas refrigerators: Don't leave the door open, reset temperature controls after a quick freezing, cool cooked foods before placing in refrigerator, don't waste space by keeping foods in refrigerators that don't have to be kept cool.

CONFERENCE ATTENDEES.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 1.—Mrs. Paul Hawks, roll call chairman of the American Red Cross in Lamar county, Mrs. J. E. Howard, production chairman, Miss Lyla Ingram, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. J. E. Bush, home service secretary, will attend the conference to be held in Macon Wednesday.

3 Earthquakes Recorded Near Spokane, Wash.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 1.—(AP) Three earthquakes, the second and heaviest coming at 11:50 a. m. (2:50 p. m. eastern war time), were recorded today at Mount St. Michael's Scholasticate.

The scholasticate said the quakes evidently centered within a radius of 150 miles of Spokane and that the school was flooded with telephone calls from northeast Spokane and the Spokane valley, east of the city.

There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Floyd Plans New Scrap Drive

ROME, Ga., Nov. 1.—Floyd county's industrial leaders are already beginning to respond to a request to report on their salvage work, in preparation for a new campaign, and the task of collecting school junk piles is in full swing.

In answer to a special plea by WPB Chief Donald Nelson, three executives have already submitted coupons pledging that every pound of metal that can be spared will be put to work to win the war.

First three on the industrial salvage "honor roll" are: Tubize Chatillon Corporation, R. C. Jones, plant manager; McGee Electric Company, F. M. McGee, proprietor; the Berry Schools, O. C. Skinner, industrial manager.

RED CROSS CLASS.

McDONOUGH, Ga., Nov. 1.—Miss Merle Higginbotham, home economics teacher at the McDonough High school, has organized a Red Cross nutrition class at the Locust Grove school. Classes begin Wednesday. Ten sessions of two hours each will be held. Mrs. L. L. Pitts is directing the organization.

Mrs. Callaway, Savannah, Dies; Funeral Today

Was Wife of Central of Georgia Railway Official.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 1.—(AP) Mrs. Henrietta Etheridge Callaway, wife of Merrel Price Callaway, trustee of the Central of Georgia Railway here and retired vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, died at a local hospital late yesterday after a brief illness.

Funeral services will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church at Macon at 4 p. m. Monday afternoon, with burial at Riverside cemetery there.

Mrs. Callaway was a former resident of Macon.

Daughter of the late Dr. James A. Etheridge and Eugenia Munnerlyn, of Macon, Mrs. Callaway represented a family widely known in the south.

Her maternal grandfather, Colonel Charles J. Munnerlyn, was a member of the Confederate congress and a colonel in the Confederate army.

Her paternal grandfather, Dr. James A. Etheridge, was chief surgeon in the brigade of General Doles of the Confederate army.

She was a member of the National Society of Colonial Dames and of the Colony Club in New York.

Survivors include her husband, her mother, two daughters, Miss Henrietta Drewry Callaway, of Savannah, and Mrs. Guido J. Gores, of Cincinnati, and one son, William C. Callaway, of Pasadena, California.

Callaway has been trustee of the Central of Georgia Railway here since his retirement as vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York last January.

SAYS HITLER, PEGLER FOLLOW SAME SLOGAN

Editor, Constitution: I am beginning seriously to doubt Mr. Pegler's motives. I just do not believe any man could stay that mad this long without becoming so violent as to have to be incarcerated in a padded cell. So it makes me wonder if, after all, he is not really mad, but, having a talent for venom, and being a "Roosevelt-hater" and "die-hard," is simply grinding out his stuff for a higher stake than we realize, and according to a pattern set for him either by "interests" in this country or on the wrong side of the tracks "abroad." Certainly Mr. Pegler has passed the point where he could blame anyone for thinking as they surely will and are about him.

It is paradoxical (or is it?) that Mr. Pegler and Hitler have exactly the same slogan: "Rid the World of Communism!" Also, that Hitler wants us to dislike the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, union labor, England and Russia, and Mr. Pegler wants us to dislike them, too. He fights them every day of his life. First thing you know, Mr. Pegler will probably be echoing "they are defeated, they just won't admit it!" Like Hitler, again, Mr. Pegler lives in a great big "house that venom built."

I am sick and tired of seeing a citizen of this country amassing a fortune on disunity. We need more cement and less foment.

Playing An Important Role In Such Work

Having Clothes Cleaned Often Makes Them Last Longer.

Realizing that one of the nation's most critical needs is wool for uniforms and blankets, Gold Shield customers are making their present clothes last by having them cleaned often, according to S. R. Greenblatt, president of the Gold Shield group of launderers and cleaners, which includes the American, Capital City, Decatur, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Piedmont, Trio and Troy.

"Pride in appearance," says Mr. Greenblatt, "must be kept up, and therefore it is necessary to take better care of the things we have." He pointed out further that one way to be sure of longer wear is to have your clothes cleaned often. Cleaning rids them of grit and dust that cut and wear; of stains and spots that attract moths and other parasites. Since heat tends to make some spots permanent, a garment should never be merely pressed if it is stained or spotted.

"And now that clothes are an important investment," continued Mr. Greenblatt, "they should be entrusted only with a reliable cleaner, equipped to handle the various types of style and material. With the holidays just around the corner, last year's evening suits, dresses, capes, etc., become important. A new man's dress suit is hard to get under the wool limitation order, so for longer wear the old one should be cleaned.

"Families and friends will spend more time at home this winter, and here Gold Shield is equipped to play an important part. Rugs, pillows, blankets, curtains, slip covers, etc., are all given special attention when handled by a Gold Shield cleaner."

Also, a very important part of this conservation program is Gold Shield's winter storage of summer things. Gold Shield vaults are insured against invasion, bombs, fire or explosion, and of course, moths. So they are really safer than they would be at home, and then think of the extra closet space.

Mr. Greenblatt concluded with the statement that laundries and dry cleaners are becoming more and more essential in the nation's war effort. And realizing the importance of their job, all Gold Shield employes are straining every effort to give the best possible service under the present wartime conditions.

REALIZING that a civilian can fight with his clothes, customers of the Gold Shield launderers and cleaners are having their old wardrobes cleaned for rewear. Gold Shield employes feel that they, too, have an important part in this conservation program, and careful inspection is given to every detail.

An empty house is more expensive than a Want Ad in The Constitution.

Wiping Cloths Are Featured By Rothschild

Large Force Working Day and Night To Meet Demand.

One of the busiest places in the city—and a place where its product is among the most essential and useful of any product entering into the creation of war materials—is the plant of Rothschild & Company, specialists in wiping cloths, located at 444 Edgewood avenue.

There a large force of employes are working day and night preparing bundles of clean, sterilized wiping cloths for many of the big plants still busy with its regular private patrons, operating plants of one kind and another where clean wiping cloths are essential.

The products of this plant are not only in demand by Uncle Sam in many of his large manufacturing places, but they are shipped to business concerns, factories and mills from Texas to the New England states.

"Complete sterilization of new and reclaimed materials is the outstanding feature of the service our company is offering, for we are specialists in wiping cloths, washed and sterilized in our own modernly equipped and enlarged laundry," said Mr. Rothschild.

"It is our policy to satisfy the trade with worthwhile merchandise and prompt and courteous service," he said. "Our merchandise is put up in convenient sanitary cartons and bales. All merchandise is guaranteed and we maintain a prompt delivery service."

During the more than 21 years in business Rothschild & Company has made a special study of the needs of the consuming trade, commercial and industrial, and it carries in stock wiping cloths suitable for every purpose.

The plant at 444 Edgewood, which, by the way, they would be very glad to show you, if you will come around, is not a junk shop, but kept spotlessly clean. All rags are laundered and thoroughly sterilized and there is no danger from infection from cloths that come from this firm. Experts cut these rags the proper size for use and assort them correctly. You may not know, but there are from 30 to 50 different grades of wiping cloths.

"The Rothschild Company superior quality wiping cloths are not only clean, but they are sanitary and lintless as well. In preparation," continued Mr. Rothschild. "They go through the following treatment: Washed in chemicals, boiled in live steam, baked at more than 225 degrees for 30 minutes. When finished they are as sterile as hospital gauze.

"Sanitary wipers mean insurance for your employes. They eliminate infections that set in from minor cuts. They keep cutting oil from becoming contaminated. They are one of the surest means of keeping your working forces intact."

Orkin Company Inspects Free For Termites

Exterminator Company Knows How To Destroy These Pesky Pests.

Have you had any examination made of your property—houses of any kind—to see if termites are making any headway there?

The work of termites and their subtle way of quietly sneaking in and damaging property—millions of dollars being lost in that way—is not generally known. Scores of home owners never know of the existence of termites until they have made big inroads on their property. Examinations and inspections are made free by the Orkin Exterminator Company, Inc., located at 315 Peachtree street.

The termite worker, causing damage in wood, is silent and unseen—termites are exposed only when their shelter tunnels are broken or when damaged wood is exposed. The "swarmer" (winged reproductive) appears in large swarms in the spring and early autumn months. These swarms are usually referred to as flying ants and usually indicate that there is an active termite colony in the immediate vicinity. They work only within the wood; spraying, painting, fumigating, or replacement of damaged timber will not remove a termite condition.

When the Orkin system expert finds a building termite-infested, he carefully writes up specifications for the treatment before he leaves the premises. All structural timber and other wood in and about the premises which may be susceptible to attack by termites is drilled and impregnated under sustained pressure with a wood-preserving chemical of proven quality. Walls and other areas through which termites may enter are drilled and treated in a like manner. Soil in unexcavated areas, under porches, terraces, steps or adjacent to foundation walls is also thoroughly treated under pressure.

Nelson Will Outline New Plan To Stop Waste in War Plants

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Chairman Donald M. Nelson, of the War Production Board, will announce tomorrow a new plan of apportioning materials to war industries to stop waste and thereby make more materials available for increased quantities of essential weapons.

Although so complicated in its details that officials indicated a small-sized volume was necessary to explain it, the plan was said to be as simple in its fundamentals as manufacturing only one steering wheel for every jeep. The company that assembles jeeps will dole out the material to the firm that makes steering columns to make sure the numbers of parts come out even in terms of complete jeeps.

Nelson called a special press conference for tomorrow at which he will outline the program along with WPB Vice Chairmen Ferdinand Eberstadt and C. E. Wilson, Undersecretary of the Navy James F. Forrestal and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson. The plan is scheduled to be put into effect gradually, with full operation planned in the second quarter of 1943.

Jeeps as Example.

Using jeeps as a hypothetical example, officials said that the present system of doling out steel and other materals theoretically permitted, in many cases, a waste of steel by making twice as many steering columns for jeeps as were needed while lack of the same steel hampered the manufacture of other weapons.

The present system, called the Production Requirements Plan (PRP), calls for the allowance of steel, copper, lumber, rubber and other materails by the WPB to each manufacturer.

In the case of a single tank, for instance, a hundred different companies making different parts of the same tank might put in individual requisitions for materials and get them. There is no method of gearing the production rate of these various companies, however, so that they will produce at the same comparative rate. Hence, there may be too many of certain parts of tanks and too few of other parts. Where there are excess parts, valuable materials are tied up or even wasted.

Plan Unnamed.

The new plan, as yet unnamed, will abolish this system in about 80 per cent of war production. In these cases, the armed services and other major agencies concerned with procurement will apportion among themselves the overall supply of materials. Needs of civilians also will be considered when the "pie is cut."

Then the Army, again using a hypothetical example, will provide its tank arsenals with enough of the Army's share of the materials to make a certain number of completed tanks. The tank arsenals then will redistribute their share of steel and other materials among subcontractors making parts, and the subcontractors may in some cases redistribute their portions to still other manufacturers making smaller parts.

Actually, pieces of paper representing quotas of materials, will pass from Army to contractor, to subcontractor, to sub-subcontractor, but whoever buys the materials will have to confine himself to the quota.

Would Run Out.

Officials hope that it will be impossible, under this scheme, for production of any part of the weapon to run too far ahead of the completed articles. The part-maker who got ahead of his schedule would automatically run out of materials.

In some cases this will limit production, since output of some individual parts may be slowed down. But in an overall sense, officials expect the plan to speed up manufacture of desired weapons, since there should be no accidental shortages of materials crippling a vital factory. In the last several months there have been reports of such temporary shutdowns of war plants.

In about 20 per cent of war output, it will not be feasible to adopt the new scheme. An example was said to be a company which makes common bolts and nuts for thousands of different industrial customers. It is regarded as impractical to have the bolt and nut-maker get his materials in tiny pieces from each of his customers. In these cases, materials will be apportioned substantially as they have been in the past.

Private Kills Fellow Soldier, Takes Own Life

Board of Inquiry To Probe Shooting at Camp Near Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The public relations office of the first service command announced that an Army private, stationed at a camp near Boston, today shot and killed a fellow soldier and then took his own life.

Colonel John J. Donovan identified the principals as Private William H. Jones, of Silver Point, Tenn., and Private Kermit E. Pettit, of Vonore, Tenn. Ages of the two were not available.

Donovan, describing Jones as the assailant of Pettit, said that Jones applied for a leave yesterday but it was denied, since he was scheduled to go on guard duty at midnight.

Jones did not report for his tour of duty, but entered his barracks about 2 a. m., with Pettit, according to Donovan, who said preliminary investigation indicated Jones had been absent from the post without leave.

Another guard, Private Jesse D. Frazier, of Woodville, Ala., told his superiors he entered the barracks and found Jones and Pettit engaged in conversation. He said Jones was preparing to report for duty.

Frazier said he refused Jones' request for the loan of two clips of bullets, which must be carried by all sentries. He declared Jones then went to his own locker and got the ammunition.

"Then he loaded his rifle and turned toward Pettit," Frazier said, quoting Jones as saying to Pettit, "you're going on your last guard."

Frazier said Jones fired one shot at Pettit and ran out of the barracks. As Frazier rushed to aid Pettit, he heard a shot and rushed outside to find Jones dead, his rifle beside him.

Camp officers said there had been no indications of bad feeling between Pettit and Jones, but said an Army board of inquiry will be convened to investigate the shooting.

than that of any other country, ally or enemy."

Morrison added, however:

"We rejoice in the tremendous industrial achievement of our American friends and allies. We welcome with enthusiasm the tremendous output of her shipbuilding industry—so much greater than our own.

"But it is still true that Britain's shipbuilding workers have an output twice as great per head as those of any other country."

He said that Britain "is near the limit of her resources in manpower, but there is still room for improvement in the organization and allocation of resources, and improvement is being made."

Morrison said that 80 per cent of Britain's war production is shipped overseas, that the Navy had taken safely to port 199 out of every 200 ships in convoy, that the country has 600 warships and auxiliaries constantly at sea and has destroyed, captured or damaged more than 125 enemy warships and more than 6,000,000 tons of his shipping.

being withheld until the next of kin of the casualties are notified but after the loss of the Wasp September 15 the fleet was left with only four in commission so far as has been disclosed—the Saratoga, Hornet, Ranger and Enterprise.

Heavy Vengeance.

Each of these carries about 85 planes and if the blasting of the Japanese force was done entirely by these airmen, they exacted heavy vengenance for their ship. It is possible, however, that the United States had another carrier in action besides the one that was lost.

In addition to laying four to six heavy bombs on one carrier and two medium ones on the other, the American fliers landed heavy bombs on two battleships, two torpedoes in a heavy cruiser, torpedo and bomb hits on a second heavy cruiser and five medium bombs on a Tikuma (second) class cruiser of which there are two, the Tikuma and Tone. One of the battleships, hit by two heavy bombs, was of the Kongo class, the same type as the battleship Haruna which Captain Colin Kelly and his Army bomber crew were originally credited with sinking.

Two U. S. Vessels Lost.

In announcing the sinking of the United States carrier last night, following earlier reports that she had been damaged, the Navy said that this ship and the destroyer Porter were the only American vessels lost in the engagement.

The detailed report on the damage done the Japanese was made to Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet and chief of naval operations, only this afternoon by Vice Admiral William Halsey, who recently succeeded Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley in command in that area.

Severe Damage.

The damage, which was considered especially severe to a task force, was reported in Navy communique Number 177:

"South Pacific: (All dates are east longitude):

"1. The first detailed report of the naval air battle which was fought on October 26th, to the eastward of the Stewart Islands was received by the commander in chief, United States fleet, this afternoon from Vice Admiral Halsey, commander of the South Pacific area. In this report the following damage to the enemy was detailed:

"(A) Four to six heavy bomb hits on an aircraft carrier of the Zuikaku class.

(B) Two medium bomb hits on another aircraft carrier of the same class.

Other Hits.

"(F) Torpedo and bomb hits on a heavy cruiser.

"(G) Two torpedo hits on a heavy cruiser.

"2. Reports indicate the definite destruction of more than 100 enemy aircraft and the probable destruction of 50 others.

"3. The above action was first reported in Navy Department communique number 169 and subsequent reference was made thereto in Navy Department communique number 171."

The Navy announced also that the American defenders of Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands struck back at the Japanese by sea, land and air and for the first time in two weeks a communique reported that Navy surfice vessels shelled enemy shore positions on the island, destroying artillery and several buildings in a two-hour bombardment Friday morning (Solomons time).

Ground Action.

Ashore the previous day, American ground forces drove west of the Matanikau river and captured two enemy 75mm guns during minor operations. The river has been the western boundary of the positions defending Henderson Air Field.

In the air seven Grumman "Wildcats" attacked the Japanese base at Rekata bay, a frequent target northwest of Guadalcanal, and shot down three Zero float planes and two biplanes and set afire buildings and a fuel dump.

In other air actions, dive bombers twice attacked destroyers with inconclusive results. One American bomber failed to return.

Communique.

The communique, No. 176, said:

"South Pacific: (All dates are east longitude)

"1. On October 29:

"(a) United States aircraft continued attacks on enemy positions on Guadalcanal island.

"(b) During minor ground operations two enemy 75mm guns were captured west of the Matanikau river.

"(c) During the late evening a Douglas 'Dauntless' dive bomber attacked two enemy destroyers near Tassafaronga. No hits were scored but the destroyers were driven westward toward the Russell islands.

"2. On October 30:

"(a) During the early morning our dive bombers attacked enemy destroyers in the vicinity of the Russell islands. Results of the attack have not been reported. One dive bomber failed to return.

"(b) During the morning seven Grumman 'Wildcats' attacked the enemy at Rekata bay. Three 'Zero' float planes and two biplanes were shot down and buildings and a fuel dump were strafed and set on fire.

"(C) During the morning United States surface ships bombarded enemy positions on Guadalcanal. The cannonading lasted more than two hours and some artillery and several buildings and boats were destroyed."

Scene of Attack.

The scene of the attack on two destroyers which were put aflight near Tassafaronga was about 10 miles northwest of the Matanikau river, the western defense line on Guadalcanal. The Russell Islands, where destroyers were attacked early Friday, are about 30 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

A naval spokesman said that the word "minor" used in describing the attack west of the river meant that no large scale offensive action was involved. Thus it appeared that both the American Marines and soldiers and the large Japanese forces previously landed on the island were biding their time pending any further large-scale move by either side which might have conclusive results. The Japanese previously have made several moves in force against the American lines, using tanks and artillery, but all have been repulsed.

The last time United States warships were reported in action against enemy shore positions was October 17. This attack was followed by announcement of the loss of two American destroyers. Japanese fleet units were reported by Secretary of the Navy Knox Friday to have withdrawn from the area. This withdrawal may have opened the way for the American attack.

Motorists Lease Tanks To Load Up on Gas

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fire Chief John Alderson said today idle service stations are being leased by motorists and the tanks, holding up to 5,000 gallons, filled in preparation for gasoline rationing.

He suggested that rationing boards might determine by tire wear whether motorists were getting more gasoline than their rationing books called for and deny them new tires or retreads.

Sea Guerrillas Destroy Two Jap Transports

Chinese Plant Mines in Path of Enemy Ships; Wreck Lighthouse.

CHUNGKING, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Chinese "sea guerrillas" operating along the Fukien province coast have destroyed two Japanese transports, the Central News Agency reported today.

Traveling by junk under cover of darkness, the guerrillas were credited with planting mines in the path of the enemy ships. In addition, the agency said they had put out of commission numerous lighthouses important to Japanese navigation.

Central News reported that in the resurgent air war the Japanese bombed Kienow, river port and highway junction in north Fukien Friday and Saturday, killing 20 Chinese.

The attacks were believed to have been spurred by Japanese fears that Kienow might be used as a base for air raids on Formosa.

Three enemy planes bombed Kwelin yesterday and Allied fighters rose to the challenge but details were lacking immediately.

A Chinese-Japanese clash on the road to Chungshan, birthplace of Sun Yat Sen, father of the Chinese republic, was reported by the Chungking high command, which said that two enemy trucks were destroyed and a number of prisoners taken.

Chungshan is in south China, near the coastal Portuguese colony of Macao. A Chinese force, east of Chungshan, was advancing on enemy positions at the town when a motorized Japanese unit rushed out to meet them.

This appeared to have been little more than an isolated guerrilla action, unless the Chinese, for sentimental reasons, were trying to recapture Dr. Sun's birthplace. The date of the action was not given.

Politicians Clamor For Support at Polls Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Republican and Democratic leaders today appealed for votes for their party's congressional candidates in Tuesday's election by emphasizing the vital role of congress in the war and the peace to follow.

"A Republican victory will mean we are going to prosecute the war with more efficiency, more determination, more power, and win decisively," said Frank Gannett, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee.

It should not be forgotten, said Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, that Woodrow Wilson lost his "program for the peace" with the election of a Republican congress. Moreover, he asserted, the social gains of the New Deal must be protected by the election of a Democratic congress.

Another pre-election statement found President William Green, of the AFL, and President Philip Murray jointly urging all American workers to vote—and "elect the friends of labor and defeat its enemies."

Investogators Posted.

This pre-election Sunday also produced word that the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee had posted investigators in Delaware, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. If possible, Chairman McFarland, Democrat, Arizona, said, agents will be sent to Iowa and Colorado before Tuesday.

Aside from New Jersey, where McFarland has been carrying on a controversy with Albert W. Hawkes, Republican candidate for the senate, against Senator Smathers, Democrat, no specific complaints are under investigation. Reports of much money being spent have been received from some other states and the agents have been instructed to check any complaints received and keep their eyes open for any irregularities.

Tuesday's voting will find the citizens electing 34 members of the senate, the entire house of representatives, 32 governors and scores of lesser public officials.

In general, the voters have seemed more preoccupied with war developments. Apathy, combined with restrictions on transportation, has resulted in sparsely attended political rallies and in many sections a minimum of campaigning. An unusually light vote has been generally predicted.

Republican leaders have been claiming a net gain of up to 35 seats in the house—a figure disputed by the Democrats. Their most sweeping claims, however, wolud fall well short of giving the GOP a majority in the house.

Little in the way of national issues has appeared, despite charges by some candidates of pre-Pearl Harbor isolationism on the part of their opponents. Some of the contests have attracted general attention nevertheless.

Presidential politics is entangled in a hot fight for the governorship of New York. Thomas E. Dewey, a Republican presidential candidate in 1940, is running against John J. Bennett Jr., Democratic attorney-general. A victory and two years as governor of New York, most politicians estimate, would considerably enhance Dewey's prestige as a presidential candidate in 1944.

The contest is made more interesting by the fact that Dewey has the indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee, while President Roosevelt is supporting Bennett. Dean Alfange of the American Labor party is a third candidate.

Mrs. Luce in Race.

Bennett, backed by James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman, received the nomination over Mr. Roosevelt's opposition. The chief executive had declared for Senator James M. Mead, and Willkie, who has sometimes been at political odds with Dewey, went on record in support of his party's nominee only last night.

In addition to the New York gubernatorial contest, the nation has been watching Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce's bid for a seat in the house from the Fourth Connecticut district. Mrs. Luce, a Republican, is widely known as a playwright, author, traveler and socialite. She seeks the seat of Representative LeRoy D. Downs, Democrat.

The senatorial race in Nebraska also has attracted attention. Senator George W. Norris, Independent, a veteran of the senate, is running for re-election at the age of 81 with the indorsement of President Roosevelt. He is opposed by Foster May, Democrat, and Kenneth S. Wherry, midwestern Republican party manager.

Marines, Other Units Test Ireland Defenses

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland, Nov. 1.—(AP)—United States Marines and other units stationed here tested the naval base's defenses today in large scale four-hour anti-invasion exercises.

It was assumed that the Germans attacked at dawn after having invaded Eire and made a landing in Donegal.

The RAF, the Navy and two antiaircraft regiments of the Home Guard assisted the defenders against two battalions of British infantry impersonating the Germans.

Gallup Poll Indicates:

Democrats Will Keep Control

By GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Chief surprise in Tuesday's election will be the continued strength of the Democrats nationally as shown in the congressional races.

The Democratic party will have virtually the same majority of seats in the house for the next two years as they have had since 1938. The election result will come much closer to Democratic expectations than to the hopes of the Republicans, who have been counting on a minimum gain of 30 seats in the house.

The final nation-wide survey by the institute shows the Democratic party polling 52 per cent of the total vote cast for the two major parties in congressional races throughout the country. The Republicans poll 48 per cent.

Number of Seats.

Translating these percentages into numbers of seats in the house gives the following approximate division by parties: Democrats, 256 to 276 seats; Republicans, 148 to 178. This compares with 268 seats for the Democrats in the 1940 election and 162 for the Republicans.

In terms of percentages the Republican vote for congressmen will likely be as follows, section by section, as compared to 1940. These results are based entirely on an average for each area of the nation, and do not apply to individual states or congressional districts.

New England Republicans, 1940, 52 per cent, today 55 per cent; middle Atlantic, 1940, 48 per cent, today 48; east central, 1940 51, today 48; west central, 1940 52, today 59; south, 1940 18, today 23; far west 1940 43, today 44.

In the campaign which will close tomorrow night institute surveys indicate that the Republican party has failed to convince the majority of the public that the war effort would proceed faster if the Republicans had more power in Washington, or to convince the public that, in the event the war should end during the next two years, the Republicans could handle the problems of peace better than the Democrats.

Although the Democrats will make a good showing in the congressional races, the Republicans will likely carry the governorship of many of the largest states. In New York, for example, where the Republicans have not won the governorship in 20 years, Thomas Dewey, the Republican candidate, was leading by a substantial majority in the Institute's semi-final report Friday.

The voter turnout on Tuesday will be the smallest at any time during the ten years since President Roosevelt was first elected.

Light Vote Seen.

The Institute forecasts a total vote in the congressional elections of approximately 30,000,000.

This compares with 50,000,000 in the presidential election only two years ago. While there is always a smaller proportionate turnout in mid-term elections than in presidential years, nevertheless the estimated vote of 30,000,000 would be approximately 16 per cent below that of the last mid-term election in 1938, and nearly 10 per cent below even that of 1934.

Many factors have conspired to reduce the turnout this year. Lack of interest in the congressional campaign, and the fact that people are unusually busy these days, helps to account for some of the expected drop in the vote. Also a sizeable number of families have moved to cities or areas offering defense jobs. Owing to residential qualifications for voting, this migration has had the effect of temporarily disenfranchising many former voters. The absentee ballot system is of course available to such people, but it is not likely that many of them will vote.

Finally, the induction of some 5,000,000 men into the armed forces, in addition to several million volunteers, drastically reduces the voting turnout in the younger age brackets. It is estimated that fewer than 2 per cent of the men in the armed services will avail themselves of voting privileges this year.

Writer To Sue 'Ham' Fish for Name-Calling

Columnist Says New Yorker's Statement Not Made to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS) Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, announced last night he intends to institute a $250,000 slander suit against Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican, New York.

Pearson said his complaint would be based on an interview published recently in a Poughkeepsie newspaper, in which Fish was alleged to have attacked the columnist.

Commenting on his proposed suit, Pearson said:

"Sometime ago, when I disclosed that Fish had leased his New York house to the Nazi consul general for a juicy rental, Fish called me a liar. On the floor of congress he said that he was going to sue. He did not sue. But I could not sue him because he had made the statement on the floor of congress.

"This time, however, Fish made the statement off the floor of congress where it has no immunity and I am suing."

Tornado-Struck Town Starts Burying Dead

BERRYVILLE, Ark., Nov. 1.—(AP)—This little Ozark mountain town today began burying the victims of a tornado which last Thursday night killed at least 28 persons and caused approximately a million dollars damage.

Seven persons were buried today and burials will continue as rapidly as arrangements can be completed.

How to Cut Down on The Coffee You Drink

By Ida Jean Kain

If you are thin and tense, your doctor may suggest that you check up on your coffee drinking. Even a cup a day may be one too many. You don't need a stimulant. You are already in high gear.

Taper off so you won't feel the let-down. When you have been in the habit of drinking several cups of coffee a day, cut down to one and one-half, then to one cup. And begin diluting that with warm milk. By the end of two weeks you can be on straight milk.

Just try it. You will be astonished at the difference in your feeling of well-being. Instead of hair trigger nerves, you will almost be a restful person.

Most of us like a hot beverage for breakfast. You can have cocoa or one of the excellent coffee substitutes. Whatever you have, boost the calories and buffer your nerves by using one-half milk.

If your nerves bring on skin troubles, you should not only cut down on coffee, and perhaps tea, but should be careful not to drink any beverage piping hot. Let it cool off a little before you drink it. This goes for soups, broths, or any other liquids.

We are all under so much pressure nowadays that we tend to speed up in everything we do. You thin girls are inclined to eat too fast and nothing could be worse for you. Take your time. Eat slowly and chew your food thoroughly. Eating rapidly interferes with a digestive system that is too delicate to begin with. It's only what you assimilate that enables you to gain weight. Whenever possible, rest after meals. At least you can rest after dinner.

You should be ready to eat at mealtime. If you are not particularly interested in food and can take it or leave it, you would do well to step up your Vitamin B intake. There are several ways of doing this. You can add wheat germ to a hot breakfast cereal. You can buy wheat germ at any good grocery store. A routine way of getting viamin B1 is to eat more bread and butter—either use the enriched bread or the 100 per cent wholewheat kind. Butter your bread generously for more calories.

You need the Vitamin B-rich foods. But you might also like to reinforce your menus with a concentrate. If so, ask your druggist for thiamin chloride tablets. These are not intended to take the place of food. They should be used merely as supplements. No concentrate can take the place of the milk, whole grains, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables and the small serving of lean meat, fish or fowl which you need every day. These are the protective foods and they are fundamental.

Keep Your Feet Dry and Save Fuel

By Dr. William Brady.

"Wear a sweater and help win the war," urges the fuel conservation administration, suggesting that this and other extra garments for indoor wear this winter will keep people more comfortable in overcool rooms (during fuel shortage) and also that these extra garments will prevent "possible ill effects of cooler indoor temperatures and drafts during the winter."

To that last observation a hearty Bronx cheer from the conductor of this column. And to all readers let me give my assurance that no man, woman or child, whether in good health or an invalid, need have any fear of "possible ill effects of cooler indoor temperatures and drafts during the winter" other than the effect coolness or drafts may have on comfort. There is no scientific evidence, certainly no clinical evidence and no actual experience to support the notion that pneumonia or any other illness is ever caused by cooler temperatures or drafts. So, if you ask my advice, I advise you not to give that notion another serious thought. The only ill effect to consider in regard to cooler indoor temperatures this winter is the effect on comfort—and that, my hearties and mollycoddles too, is mainly a question of what you wear.

Much better than gran-ma's notion about the clothing or covers for the baby is the feel of the baby's feet—if the feet feel warm to your touch, no matter what the weather or the indoor temperature, you may rest assured the child is warm enough.

Everybody knows that when the feet are cold the individual is uncomfortable.

Moisture, dampness or wet impairs the insulating value of foot coverings, whatever they may be. When the interstices or spaces between fibres of leather, cloth, paper or other foot coverings are filled with air, they tend to prevent conduction and loss of heat. When the interstices or spaces are filled with water or water vapor, the coverings become better heat conductors and tend to promote loss of heat. That is why wet or damp foot coverings predispose to chilblain and frostbite when one is exposed to severe cold.

A cause of a good deal of discomfort in winter time is excessive sweating of the feet. This keeps stocking-feet and shoe linings or leather constantly damp or moist and the excessive loss of heat tends to keep the individual always a little less than warm and comfortable.

Control of excessive sweating of the feet is described in pamphlet on "Sweating" I mail on request if you send a three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address.

Keep your feet dry and help save fuel this winter.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Hernia Cured.

I received the injection treatment of hernia from Dr. ..... whom you recommended. My hernia is completely cured and I would highly recommend this type of treatment to anyone who is handicapped with a hernia.

(B. F. McF.)

Answer: Thank you. Your doctor was one of the pioneers in developing the method. If the public were adequately informed about the treatment of hernia probably the great majority of cases would have this treatment. Moreover, a good many hernia sufferers who drag on with hernia because they hesitate to undergo the major operation and the necessary hospitalization and absence from work would be cured by the ambulant (injection) method.

Old Fan.

This is just one of your old fans telling you how much I have enjoyed your column for years. Your articles are a rare combination of good humor and "horse sense." Your pamphlet on "The Calcium Shortage" has been very helpful and I am now enjoying fine health. My family is raised but I want the "Brady Baby Book" just to see if my neighbors are doing right by little Johnny. (R. LeM.)

Answer—On the other hand, some readers resent any lapse from the style of Dr. Munyon, and regard it as undignified. So I have to repress many a chuckle lest it offend some lugubrious customer. For the pamphlet "The Calcium Shortage" inclose stamped envelope bearing your address. If you want the Brady Baby Book inclose 10 cents additional.

Dandruff.

May I have your dandruff remedy? I have been reading your column at least 10 years. You called yourself "Ol' Doc Brady" then. Evidently you have succeeded where Ponce de Leon failed, at least mentally. (H. E. D.)

Answer — For the pamphlet "Care of the Hair and Control of Dandruff" send stamped envelope bearing your address. Ponce turned up his toes at the age of 61—but then, the poor fellow didn't know a thing about vite.

MY DAY: Excellent Health of U. S. Boys in England

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

LONDON, Friday.—We were to have left yesterday morning by air at 9 o'clock, but at the last minute it was decided to leave at 10 o'clock by car. We went to visit our own air forces and got along very well, traveling through quaint little villages through England, until we came somewhere near our destination. Then we were lost.

People in England always have liked privacy and their houses always have been hidden at the end of long avenues or behind high walls. For that reason, I suppose, everything else in Great Britain seeks privacy. One's destination, therefore, was hard to find.

We picked up a young RAF boy, finally, who knew his way about.

At the first stop I was allowed to go inside one of our big planes and I know now why every man belonging to the air force should be thin! I climbed into the pilot's seat, but not until I wondered once or twice whether I would ever be able to move forward or backward again. It was worth doing, however, for it gave me a feeling that I would know and be able to picture to myself what each boy did in one of those planes.

Then we drove to another American air group and here I had the opportunity to shake hands with all the officers and chat with some of them a few minutes. One of the boys told me he had been to the Groton school with one of our sons. Only last week he had written a long letter to the rector. How many letters must go from this war, as they did in the last to the Reverend Endicott Peabody, who is headmaster of the Groton school for so many years. He still takes enough interest in all his boys to send them postcards on their birthdays.

I went into the chapel to say a few words with some of the men. One boy directly in front of me looked at me with bored antagonistic eyes. I imagine he wondered why he had been asked to turn out to look at and listen to an old woman. They are a wonderful group of young men, these boys of the air force, and one is very proud of them.

I wish I could take a message to every woman at home from a particular man she is thinking about. I can tell her, however, that a great deal of thought is being given to the health and well-being of these men of our fighting forces. In spite of the fact that so many have colds at first, the health record is excellent and, they tell me, better even than in the United States.

We were sent on still another section where Elliott's group lined up and I walked down the line meeting officers, speaking to some men. There are boys from Texas, Tennessee, North Carolina, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, California, Wisconsin, in Elliott's outfit. I imagine that in every outfit there will be boys from nearly every state of the Union, which will increase our knowledge of each other even as living side by side with our Allies will increase our knowledge of the world.

There was an RAF group near-by in the village, so all of us, including members of the press who had been trying to follow us all day, were invited to have a cup of tea before we started on our way back. The press gathered around me here because they had seen comparatively little of us during the day and we had a few minutes' chat. Reaching home about 7 we had a quiet dinner and evening and this morning I will leave by train for another long tour.

Deanna Durbin Looks Back On Seven Years in Pictures

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—Talk about "lucky stars"—every star is lucky, I think. Lucky to be in pictures and lucky to be a star. I know that I've been a lucky girl for the last six years (although anyone who says I haven't worked hard, too, is in for a fight). I think I've been especially lucky to see and experience the changes that have taken place in motion pictures.

I thought about all this recently while going through some old scrapbooks kept by my mother after I got into the movies. Now, what has happened to one person who has only been in pictures six years is not important. But I found evidence of many changes in motion pictures just reading copies—questions and answers—of interviews I had when I was a 14-year-old girl just starting.

If you will excuse the personal nature of such a thing, I'd like to pick just a few questions at random. I'll give the question and my answer to it, back in 1936. Then I'll tell how I would answer the same question today. I think it will show a little bit about how the movies have changed, both in natural development and in the effects of the war. For instance:

Question: "Briefly, what is your picture about?"

Answer (1936): "'Three Smart Girls' is the story of a New York family. The father and mother are having trouble and the story is about the three kids' efforts to keep them from getting a divorce."

Answer (1942): "'Forever Yours' is the story of an American girl who escapes from China with nine refugee children, after Jap bombings. They arrive in San Francisco and there she becomes involved with a wealthy family—including a handsome young grandson."

The point is, that the "Three Smart Girls" story would not have enough "importance" today, without at least a background of war and the realistic problems people face in wartime.

Here's another:

Q.: What time do you report for work in the morning?"

A. (1936): "I come in for hairdress and make-up at 7 o'clock, and report on the set at nine."

A. (1942): "I come in for hairdress and make-up at eight, and report on the set at nine."

Because I'm older now, my hairdress is naturally more complicated and my make-up needs more attention. Sometimes my hairdress is changed from one day to another (my studio hair-dresser, Alma Armstrong, says I've had more than 100 different hair-do's in 10 pictures), but improved methods and materials have cut the time in half.

A. (1936): "Simple, girlish things—just the kind of things an average American girl of 14 would wear."

A. (1942): "Everything from evening gowns to one outfit consisting of a torn skirt and blouse, a man's peajacket and high men's shoes."

Here's something which frankly hasn't changed much (except for me—I wear high heels and silk stockings now instead of flat heels and bobby socks) except in style and for materials and other things under priorities. I've had everything in the wardrobe line—from two changes costing $24.50 in "100 Men and a Girl" to 23 changes costing $20,000 in "It's a Date."

Q.: "Do the lights bother your eyes?"

A. (1936): "Yes, they sometimes become tired at night, after a day under the lights."

Q.: "Do you enjoy location trips?"

A. (1936): "Very much. We spent two weeks at Arrowhead for 'Three Smart Girls' and I had a wonderful time."

A. (1942): "Yes—but they are very rare now. Almost any setting can be built right on the sound stages, where there is less interference with shooting. War transportation difficulties have cut down locations, too, and studios have often found ideal locations right in their own backyards."

Q.: "When do you study your lines?"

A. (1936): "At home, before I go to bed."

A. (1942): "I don't—until I get on the lot. I learned my lesson on the first picture. I used to study my lines at night, then I'd come in sleepy-eyed the next day and find out they had all been changed."

Some of the technical changes have made it more difficult for us, although most have made it easier, as shown in the next two questions.

Q.: "Is recording of songs difficult for you?"

A. (1936): "Not particularly. It's just a question of getting together with the orchestra on the recording stage, and both of us getting a good 'take' at the same time."

A. (1942): "It's sometimes difficult because I now sing in a booth while the orchestra plays outside. This way, we can get separate tracks, so that later either the orchestra or my voice can be removed from any part of the film. It requires perfect timing with an orchestra I can't even hear."

A. (1936): "Working in front of the crew doesn't, because it gives you something of an audience to 'play to.' Sometimes the camera makes me a little nervous, though—especially the wooden 'clapper' they use to number a scene, and 'clap' right in front of your face."

A. (1942): "Not at all. That 'clapper' has been replaced by a little device attached right onto the camera, which numbers the scene 'painlessly.'"

There are some things which haven't changed (and never will, I'm sure). Like this—

Q.: "Do you enjoy working in pictures?"

A. (1936): "I enjoy it very much. Most of the time it's like a big game."

A. (1942): "It's still mostly a big game to me, although I was 14 when I started and I'll be 21 on December 4."

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist

What today means to you if you were born between.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—The period previous to 3:12 p. m. favors general business legal consultations and contacting those capable of giving good counsel. The period favors buying and selling.

April 20-May 20 (TARUS)—This is a splendid day for achievement, for using your originality and personality in new and forceful ways. Previous to 12:29 p. m. favors dealing with people who are in the public eye.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—The entire day and until 7:53 p. m. favors mechanical and industrial works, finances, educational and legal affairs, but suggests caution in works around liquids, chemicals and drugs.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Before 11:05 a. m. may be slow period and you may find it difficult to keep affairs going. The remainder of the day seems filled with favorable influences, making this an auspicious period to seek favors, consultations, for dealings with older people, financial transactions, legal affairs and travel.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—New beginnings today are likely to be very interesting, but not in the way that you would prefer, for you will have a tendency to meet disruption and in harmony. The period does not especially favor signing papers and use caution in dealing with near relatives and near neighbors.

August 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Before 10:05 a. m. may be a slow period and you may find it difficult to keep affairs going. The remainder of the day seems filled with favorable influences, making it an auspicious period to seek favors, consultations, for dealings with older people financial transactions, legal affairs and travel.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—Between 9:01 a. m. and 2:28 p. m. appears to be the most favorable part of the day when you should look at the world, in a practical, matter-of-fact way. This is an especially good time for general business and hard work.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—The entire day favors new and important undertakings. You may have opportunities to accomplish something towards your highest ideals today and until 10:42 p. m.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGGITARIUS)—Public matters of dealings with the public where finances are involved, or where it is necessary to use diplomacy, are especially favored with 3:31 p. m. After 3:31 p. m. a feeling of nervousness may incline to mistakes and nervousness.

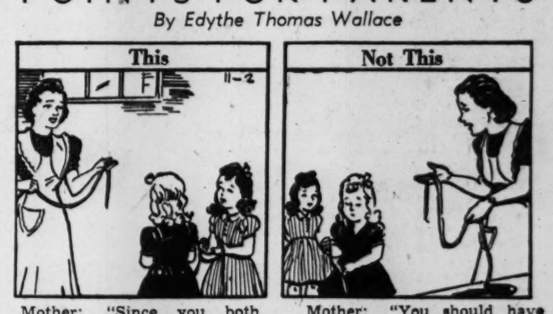
Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—The influences operating today are such that may suddenly break up some existing condition in your life. You may have to guard against a dogged determination to go ahead no matter what the outcome.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—It might be well to give business and social associates every consideration before 5:12 p. m. for you are apt to encounter a let-down feeling, or meet with coldness, which may retard matters. The vibrations suggest that you do not enter into affairs that you desire to progress in an aggressive manner.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Before 2:41 p. m. and after 8:31 p. m. is an excellent period, especially in matters that involve mental effort. Contracts with others should result agreeably, and this will be an auspicious time for dealings with those who are at the head of affairs. An excellent period for literary matters, and situations where diplomatic dealings, are required. The evening hours suggest caution in travel and avoid sudden changes.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace



Mother: "Since you both helped cut the clothesline to make jumping ropes, I think you should both give some of your own money to buy a new line. Don't you think so?"

Mother: "You should have known better than to use the clothesline for jumping ropes. To punish you, you'll have to play alone in your own yard for a week."

If children are to learn by experience, punishment should follow the natural laws of cause and effect as nearly as possible.

NEEDLE WORK.

TUCUMCARI, N. M.—Patrolmen Bud Clayton and Tom Turner, cruising along, spotted a strange looking animal. Clayton, who once roped a buffalo at a rodeo, climbed from the car, looped on the noose with his first toss. He was proudly reeling his catch in, when he got a closer look—and decided not to. He had roped a porcupine.

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

Editor's Note: This is the ninth of a series of sketches giving intimate glimpses into the lives of Atlanta debutantes. Banning all social functions in their honor, this season's buds have voted to concentrate on war and defense work, their efforts along this line to be revealed in this series.

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • DEBUTANTE JEAN LOUGHRIDGE did not attend the Halloween ball on Saturday evening at the Driving Club, because she could not forsake her studies as a junior at the University of North Carolina, where she is majoring in sociology.

The absence of the pretty bud from the season's gayest party was sincerely regretted by her sister debutantes, for Jean is extremely popular with her contemporaries.

Jean, you recall, was enrolled at William and Mary College, in Williamsburg, Va., during her freshman and sophomore terms, where she was a valued member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma national social fraternity. She was chosen to edit the Kappa Kappa Gamma paper while at William and Mary—which is a flattering tribute to her ability along journalistic lines.

JEAN LOUGHRIDGE.

This dainty deb, who inherits much of her charm and affability from her lovely mother, Mrs. Edwin P. Loughridge, is admired by young and old alike. She has blue eyes and wavy reddish-brown hair, and has received marked attention as a member of the young social set since high school days. Incidentally, her Christmas parties have won her a reputation for being one of Atlanta's most delightful and ingenious hostesses.

She is a graduate of North Fulton High school, where she was a member of the Phi Pi sorority. An extremely loyal person, Jean enjoys people. She adores vivid colors, and looks particularly pretty in raspberry red. Her fingernail polish, however, is usually pale in color.

Jean is keenly interested in "women in defense," and during the past summer she reported frequently at Red Cross headquarters to roll bandages. She also passed a first aid course, and attended the dances given by the Girls' Battalion, of which she is a member, for the entertainment of service men.

Skilled in aquatic sports, this deb was on the swimming team at William and Mary College, and is extremely proficient in the backstroke. Her graceful swimming form attracted admiring comment at the Driving Club pool last summer, where she enjoyed frequent dips in the sparkling turquoise waters. She is also a skilled equestrienne, having won numerous ribbons at horse shows. And, of course, she likes to dance!

• • • ANN WAGAR did not hope to attend the Halloween ball given Saturday evening at the Piedmont Driving Club, because she is enrolled on the roster of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville, Tenn. But, when the date rolled around on the calendar, Ann could not resist the temptation to entrain for Atlanta, and so she rode all night long to reach here in time for the auspicious event.

School Set Feted At Skating Party.

An interesting affair among the younger school set was the Hallowe'en party given by Barbara and Frank Bell and Sandra and Ted Jordan who entertained recently at the Penn avenue rollerdrome.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Homer Bell and Mrs. Thomas H. Jordan are the parents of the hosts.

The Atlanta Junior League entertains at a luncheon honoring its provisional members at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow, at the Piedmont Driving Club, preceding its meeting at 3 o'clock. All members are invited, and reservations must be made before 10 o'clock tomorrow morning with Mrs. Joseph Birnie, CH. 9602, or with the reservation clerk at the club.

Miss Frances Alston Will Be Honored At Party Tomorrow

Mrs. Robert C. Alston and Mrs. Roy Minier entertain tomorrow at luncheon in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club as a complimentary gesture to Miss Frances Alston, an attractive bride-elect. The placecards will feature handpainted pictures of brides wearing white tulle veils.

Invited to meet the honor guest are Misses Ann Ansley, Isabel Vretman, Frances Cundell, Jean Pentecost, Alice Belle Davis, Mary Hodgson, Mesdames Carl Osteen, Robert Hinds, Waters Ross and Walden Woodward.

Seated at the table with the hostesses will be Mesdames Ott Alston, Philip Alston, Edward O. Alston, of Colorado Springs, Col.; A. H. Alston, Fannie Berry Wright, Douglas Wright, and Harvey Lewis, of Ruston, La.

Miss Alston is the niece of Mrs. Alston and a cousin of Mrs. Minier. Her marriage to Ensign Jesse Meade Lewis, U. S. N. R., takes place next Saturday.

Service Group.

Service Group and Omnibus meets Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the Capital City Club. Plans will be completed for the group's annual "white elephant" sale, proceeds from which will be used to maintain charity beds at Egleston hospital.

Mrs. John Grant Named Winner Of Service Pin

The Peachtree Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun. Mrs. Roby Robinson, first vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Arthur Harris. It was announced that Mrs. John W. Grant was awarded the war service pin by the Garden Club of America.

Mrs. Grant gave the club's conservation report, and announced that the Garden Club of Georgia has requested the club to assist in the salvage of metal.

Mrs. Davis Webster reported that 500 choice wild flowers have been planted in the club's woodland park. Mrs. Thomas Erwin gave the horticultural report, exhibiting fresh strawberries, parsley and jewel peppers from her garden. Mrs. Calhoun, representing the Woman's Auxiliary to the Fulton County Doctors, requested that the club members register for blood type at the Fulton county office of the Academy of Medicine.

Mrs. Albert Thornton spoke on her recent trip to Memphis, where she visited by the invitation of the Memphis Garden Club, the meeting of The Friends of the Land. Mrs. Samuel Inman, chairman of one of the club's war projects, a ward at General Lawson hospital, requested members to donate cards, games and magazines. Mrs. Inman, the program chairman, presented Mrs. William Minnich, who read a paper on "Tree Care and Culture"; Mrs. Calhoun, whose subject was "Specimen Trees," and Mrs. Cam Dorsey, whose subject was "Aristocrat Dwarf Tree." Mrs. Robert Alston exhibited an orchid plant in full bloom. Mrs. William P. Hill displayed specimen blooms and a pepper plant.

Following the concert a reception will be held in the ball room. Pouring coffee will be Mrs. Charles Chalmers, Mrs. Walter Bedard, Mrs. Charles Dowman and Mrs. Louis Hirsch. Misses Winifred Shackleford, Mary Louise Hastings, Alice Mitchell, Mary Ann Robinson and Callie Yuger will serve.

Mrs. Donald Hastings has charge of decorations.

MRS. WILLIAM JOHN O'BRIEN.

Miss Loulie Clements Wed To William John O'Brien

The Little Chapel at Glenn Memorial church formed the setting Saturday evening for the marriage of Miss Loulie McIntosh Clements, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Myrick Clements, of Greenville, and William John O'Brien, of Cambridge, which was solemnized at 6:30 o'clock in the presence of immediate members of the family and friends of the young couple.

Dr. N. C. McPherson Jr., president of Wesleyan College, officiated and the musical program was presented by Mrs. E. E. Aiken, organist. Baskets of white anemone chrysanthemums and white tapers flanked the altar.

Walter Harris Sheffield and Guy Mankin Jr. were ushers.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left for the east and will be at home after November 9 at 1619 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, Mass.

Miss Clements is the granddaughter of the late Mr. E. P. Burns Sr., of Atlanta, and Mrs. Burns, now of Pelham, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Burns were pioneer residents of Atlanta and were distinguished citizens. He was a former member of the board of education and during his lifetime was active in the educational and civic life of Atlanta. The bride is a great-granddaughter of Rigdon McCoy McIntosh, who oceupied the chair of music at Old Emory College at Oxford in the early days of the college. The McIntosh home still stands in Oxford.

Mrs. O'Brien was graduated from the Atlanta Law School and has been admitted to the bar. For the past eight years she has served as secretary to Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, representative from this county in the legislature.

Mr. O'Brien is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Smith O'Brien, of Cambridge, Mass. He attended Wentworth Institute in Boston and is connected with the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation in Boston.

New Arrivals

Lieutenant (j.g.) and Mrs. D. G. Pardue announce the birth of a son, Daniel Gibson Jr., on October 28, at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Pardue is the former Miss Roselyn Lasseter, of Atlanta. Judge Luther Rosser has returned to the Georgian Terrace hotel following an operation at Emory hospital.

T. S. Jones Jr., of New York, was the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. N. Earle Clayton at their home, 486 West Ontario avenue.

For Mrs. Montgomery.

Mrs. Thomas Bratton Jowers and Miss Madeline Ginn will entertain Tuesday at 8 o'clock at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. William Dannon Montgomery, the former Miss Helen Conner, whose marriage to Warrant Officer Montgomery was a recent event of interest. The party will be given at the home of Mrs. E. W. Ginn, 293 Gordon avenue, N. E., and will assemble a number of close friends of the honor guest.

Opti-Mrs. Club Meets.

The Opti-Mrs. Club meets Tuesday at 12 o'clock, in the Lee Room at Davison-Paxon's, for their monthly luncheon. A surprise program has been arranged for the entertainment of each member.

Miss Little Weds Robert H. Shields At Quiet Rites

Cordial interest centers in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Evelyn Little to Robert Henry Shields, which was quietly solemnized Saturday morning by Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, who officiated at a ceremony held in his study. Guests included only the immediate families of the couple and a few close friends.

The beautiful bride is a daughter of Mrs. Charles Homer Little, of Atlanta and Auburn, and the late Mr. Little, of Auburn. She is a sister of Mrs. Kelly Elliot, of Carl; Master Sergeant Charles Little, with the U. S. Army, stationed in England; Howell Little and Miss Elizabeth Little, of Atlanta. The bride is a descendant of prominent Barrow and Gwinnett county families. On her maternal side she is a granddaughter of Mrs. G. W. Giles and the late Mr. Giles, of Auburn. Her paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. David Little, of Duluth.

Following her graduation from Winder High school, the bride attended North Georgia College at Dahlonega, and for the past year she has held a position in Atlanta, residing with Mrs. Frank Wilkie, 272 Oxford Place, N. E.

Mr. Shields is the only son of Mrs. R. H. Shields and the late Dr. Shields, well-known Atlanta dentist. He received his education at Boys' High, Riverside Military Academy at Gainesville and the University of Georgia Evening College in Atlanta. He is connected with the Estes Surgical Supply Company as a salesman. Mr. Shields and his bride will reside at 2113 Boulevard Drive.

Other highlights of October were the model theater party; an outdoor picnic and badminton party held at the home of Mrs. Frank Henry; a dance at the Service Men's Center, and an evening spent at Red Cross headquarters rolling bandages.

The Beta Sigma Phi recently entertained Mrs. Frances Dominick Gilson and a bride-elect, Miss Marcia Bierman at a dinner and linen shower.

LIEUTENANT AND MRS. THOMAS J. HICKS JR.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Hicks were married recently at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church before a fashionable assemblage of relatives and friends. Mrs. Hicks is the former Miss Sallie Cobb Johnson, beautiful daughter of Mrs. Ashley S. Johnson. Lieutenant Hicks is in the U. S. Naval Reserve Corps, and he and his attractive bride are residing in Jacksonville, Fla. Lieutenant Hicks is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hicks, of Copperhill, Tenn.

Miss Maud Madden Weds James Haygood in Concord

CONCORD, Ga., Nov. 1.—Interest centers in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Maud Irvin Madden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Boykin Madden to Mr. James Floyd Haygood, of Thomaston. The ceremony took place in October 24 at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents.

Rev. Wilson Walker, pastor of the Concord Baptist church, performed the ring ceremony and Mrs. W. D. Howell, of Zebulon, a former teacher of the bride, gave a musical program.

Miss Carolyn Madden, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an ensemble of blue wool with matching accessories and a spray of Talisman roses.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a dressmaker suit of victory blue wool worn with brown accessories and bronze orchids.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception. The bride's table, overlaid with a cut-work cloth was decorated with a four-tiered wedding cake flanked by silver candlesticks holding burning white tapers. Serving coffee and tea were Mrs. C. Richter Smith and Miss Sallie Mae Strickland.

Assisting in receiving were Mesdames Fred Lee, G. M. Strickland, W. F. Madden, R. H. Strickland, Calvin Prescott, B. L. Shackleford.

The bride's book was kept by Miss May Iva Hollified, of Atlanta.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Haygood, Miss Fannie Will Haygood, Mr. and Mrs. Ed R. Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Will Woodall, of Thomaston; Mrs. B. L. Georgia, Tech Teams Rank One-Two Nationally

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

A Good Game "Football must be a good game when a boy like Tommy Witt, fighting our enemies, kept writing back to the States seeking last-minute information about the Georgia team," Coach Wallace Butts told Georgia alumni Friday night.

(Witt lost his life in an air battle over Egypt two weeks ago.)

Tommy would like the spirit of the Bulldogs. It is the same sort of spirit that impelled him to write Coach Butts just before his death.

He said, "Don't worry about the war. The American boys are willing to work as hard as necessary to do the job." Tommy had written that they all wanted to deliver a knockout to the Axis and be back home for Christmas.

Harold Hirsch Jr. asked Coach Wallace Butts for the ball. He wanted to bury it next to his father, a great University of Georgia supporter.

Wally said, "Harold, that ball will never be buried. I want that ball to go to your mother to sit on her mantelpiece . . . because if it hadn't been for Mr. Hirsch we would not be at the university today.

Harold called his mother to tell her that she was to receive the football. Mrs. Hirsch replied, "I rather Georgia gave the ball to the mother of Tommy Witt . . . because I know Georgia played this game for him. Please extend to Mrs. Witt my deepest condolence . . . I know exactly how she feels . . . It is as if I had lost my own son."

The Pay Off It has been repeatedly mentioned that conditioning with Wallace Butts is a fetish. It also has been pointed out, from time to time, that an athlete weighing as much as 190 pounds need ask no favors of giants who stagger the scales.

Georgia's line is not necessarily big. It was almost medium-looking beside Alabama's. But when it settled down to a matter of lasting, who had the big edge? Georgia did.

Frankie Sinkwich is the finest individual football player Georgia has had in modern history. Frankie unquestionably is one of the greatest of all time.

He was not rushed so much on his passes, but after he turned the ball loose or anytime he had the ball to run, the big Tidesmen turned the heat on. Frankie took a terrific beating.

I talked with him afterwards. Bill Mason, Constitution photographer, had dropped by the Biltmore to get a picture of Frankie and his wife, with Mrs. Sinkwich wearing one of The Constitution's silver stars. Frankie is enlisted in the Marines for service after the football season.

Frankie said, "They sure did hit me hard. But they were clean. I'm kinda whipped down."

Considering the pressure and all, the game was remarkably free of penalties. It was brilliantly officiated.

Poschner Popular Granny Rice, Stan Woodward, Bill Cunningham and other noted visitors were raving, afterwards, about the play of George Poschner, terrific end.

"Am I wrong in thinking he played the best game?" Grantland asked contemporaries. They assured him he was not wrong in any conclusion he had reached about the greatness of Poschner.

"Georgia has at least two All-Americans," Rice was told. "Sinkwich and Poschner. And it probably is the first time in history that two boys from the same school ever were linked together for the honor. That is, two boys from the same high school—Cheney High, of Youngstown, O."

Not alone were the visiting gentry raving about Poschner's offensive play, making those brilliant catches that saved the day for Georgia. Not at all. They figured that defensively he was even greater. At least he was as valuable in halting 'Bama rushes.

Ace Announcer Southerners appreciate Harry Wismer, of the Blue network. Wismer is an ace announcer and a swell fellow personally.

He aired the Georgia-Alabama game in brilliant fashion and listeners said they'd like to hear more of him. He ought to get a bowl assignment.

I doubt, seriously, that there are any better announcers on football. And that goes double for Ted Husing.

Bulldogs Run Victory String To 13 Straight

Constitution Sports Editor.

For the first time in football history, Georgia and Georgia Tech rightfully rank one-two nationally.

The great unbeaten teams of our state schools take precedence over all others since Ohio State was knocked from the pinnacle by a fighting Wisconsin eleven. Notre Dame previously tied Wisconsin, and Georgia Tech humbled the Fighting Irish.

Georgia Tech's victory over Duke and Georgia's rout of Alabama staggers the imagination of followers of the schools. They are hoping that nothing will interfere with the staging of a national championship contest at Athens, Ga., a few weeks hence.

Tech has won six straight. Georgia Saturday made it seven for the season and 13 triumphs in a row. Alabama last defeated Georgia, but Wally Butts never loses twice in a row to the same school. Or at least he never has.

ALMOST HIT IT.

Governor-elect Ellis Arnall almost had the right score. Ellis, in a brief talk to Georgia alumni Friday night, said Georgia would win by three touchdowns. They scored three in winning a vital game, 21 to 10.

As one who picked Georgia—and stuck to it—the victory was a glorious thing. It was a magnificent testimonial for conditioning. Georgia, besides having an unstoppable passing attack, had the ability to outlast the Titans of Frank Thomas.

Thomas said if he had to lose he'd rather lose to Wally Butts and to Georgia, where he had his first coaching job. And so he was not too broken up by the defeat.

Coach Butts said before the game that Georgia was ready. Nobody ever saw a team that was any better prepared. They not only had lasting power but the intestinal fortitude to snatch victory from the Crimson's grasp after being 10 points behind at the start of the final period.

Alabama seldom has been treated so harshly in a long and glorious history. Their man-handling linemen were beat to the punch, and were not only groggy but actually rocking at the finish.

STRONG AT END.

Georgia was going strong at the end.

Georgia Poschner, a great end, finally won recognition with a superlative all-around performance. The visiting writers from the east and Harry Wismer, ace of the Blue network, thought he played as well as any end could play in any major game.

And, of course, they paid high tribute to Frankie Sinkwich and Georgia's gameness.

Oddly, both Tech and Georgia staged fine comeback performances. Tech didn't wait as long as Georgia to go ahead. But the Bulldogs had it when they needed it.

Tech had never beaten Duke at Durham, and the shellacking Coach Alex's boys handed the Blue Devils sort of makes up for Wallace Wade's merciless hammering of two years ago. Duke had been most impressive in walloping Colgate and Pittsburgh. The Blue Devils should have confined their activities to that sort of competition.

The chips are down for both Tech and Georgia for the remainder of the season. A tough Kentucky team comes to Grant field Saturday. Georgia goes up against an in-and-out Florida team that smashed Auburn. Neither the Jackets nor the Bulldogs can afford to relax.

Sewanee Grid Team Defeats Jacket Frosh

Tigers Score Early for 7-0 Win in Fog-Clouded Contest.

SEWANEE, Tenn., Nov. 1.—Sewanee Tigers battled in rain and fog to a 7 to 0 victory yesterday over the Georgia Tech freshmen. Sewanee scored early in the game and managed to hold the lead despite serious threats in the second half by Tech.

The game was the first for the Sewanee squad. The University last year discontinued intercollegiate competition and cancelled its schedule. The team which played the Tech Frosh was selected from the two Sewanee teams.

The second half featured a punting duel between Graham Roberts of Sewanee and Tech's Red Broyles. Tech once drove deep into Tiger territory only to lose the ball on downs.

The crowd of local residents who turned out for the game received small reward for their trouble. The mountain top fog was so thick at times the players were not visible from one end of the field to the other. Safety men had to wait for punts to hit the ground before they knew where to find the ball.

Hardy Did All-American Job Against Blue Devils

Jackets Beat Duke at Its Own Game; Regulars Get Vacation Today.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Harvey Hardy, 185 pounds of terrific guard, probably won't be listed on any All-American football teams this year—but it won't be because he doesn't deserve to be there.

Take his own coach's word for it, the husky Thomaston boy turned in one of the best jobs in Tech history against Duke Saturday. "He certainly played All-American ball," Coach Bill Alexander remarked after the game.

Hardy was all over the place. He stopped every Duke thrust which came his way and more than once he broke through to spill ball carriers going the other way for big losses. He rushed the passer, the punter and he has yet to miss a tackle.

Hardy's is a real success story. Unheralded, he came to Tech and immediately took his place along some 50 other unknown Red Devil players. He battled his way upwards, however, and with each pound added to his weight, he took a step in the right direction.

Finally, he hit the jackpot towards the middle of last season and won his way to a first team job despite heavy competition from veterans. This season he has been a ball of fire in Tech's undefeated march.

He deserves a spot on the All-Southeastern team.

One of the most pleasing things about the Tech-Duke battle was the way in which the Jackets beat the Blue Devils at their own game.

Duke long since has been noted as a team which plays for the breaks — waiting for a blocked punt or fumble to score and keeping the opposition back to its own goal line with punts.

To top it all, Tech's defense was so good, Duke crossed the midfield only twice in the game—once on Storer's 55-yard touchdown run. Most of the time the Devils were backed up inside their own 25-yard stripe.

The first two varsity teams will be given a vacation from practice today by Coach Alex. The boys have been working hard every day this season and the Jacket boss believes a rest will do them good.

We erred when we wrote that the ball was batted into the air by Tom Davis and Jordan caught it for the touchdown. What really happened was that Jordan, seeing he was well covered, didn't try to catch the ball. Instead he knocked it away from him and then ran under it to make the catch in the end zone.

Tech's pass defense was great. . . . Duke threw four and completed three—all of them to Jacket defenders. . . . The Jackets used a four-man line most of the afternoon, occasionally switching to a six and five. . . . Most cheering part of the Tech performance was the yardage piled up by Sheldon, Castleberry and Prokop returning kicks. . . . A total of 225 yards passed under the flying heels of this trio. . . . It's a wonder Duke didn't start punting the ball out of bounds.

Georgia, Tech In Full Control Of S. E. C. Race

Bulldogs and Jackets Only Undefeated Clubs Left in South.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Georgia Bulldogs, bogging down on the ground as virtually all others have done against Alabama this year, leaped into the air Saturday to halt the 'Bama march, 21-10, with a brilliant fourth-quarter raid. It was Georgia's seventh straight victory this season and its fourth within the conference.

Georgia Tech's Engineers, with only one conference decision, also came from behind to whip Duke, 26-7, for their sixth consecutive triumph. Thereby, they cleared one more hurdle in a rocky path leading to a late November duel with Georgia.

VOLS WHIP TIGERS.

Once-beaten Tennessee put the skids under L. S. U. hopes of finishing with a clean conference record by smashing the Tigers with unexpected decisiveness, 26-0. L. S. U., stopped only by nonconference Rice, fell victim to Tennessee's furious second-quarter attack.

Mississippi State, uncrowned defending champion, continued its fine comeback after two setbacks by trimming Auburn, 6-0, for its third successive conference win. The Tulane Greenies broke their alternate-week winnings by outscoring Vanderbilt, 28-21, for their second victory in a row.

The four conference duels left Alabama, L. S. U., Florida and Tennessee with one Big 12 defeat each, to trail Georgia leaders.

RISKS RECORD.

Georgia risks its perfect record next Saturday against Florida, which bowed to Maryland, 13-0, for its third defeat outside the circuit. Georgia Tech will entertain Kentucky, 27-6 winner over George Washington. Kentucky has lost three games by a total margin of 16 points this season.

Mississippi, fresh from a 48-0 romp over Memphis State, will be host to Vanderbilt and Mississippi State is to invide Tulane in Saturday's other conference contests.

L. S. U.-Fordham and Tennessee-Cincinnati will supply the intersectional flavor. Alabama will tackle South Carolina. Auburn has an engagement with Georgia's Preflight Naval eleven.

The standings:

Tide, Buckeyes, Army Suffer First Defeats

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Salvage crews were busy all over the country today picking up broken records and shattered reputations after one of the most topsy-turvy Saturdays of an already completely wacky football season.

But at Atlanta, Madison, Wis., and Philadelphia, they are converting the scrap into monuments for Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's All-America halfback, who engineered the 21-to-10 win over Alabama; Elroy Hirsch, Pat Harder and Dave Schreiner, the Wisconsin trio who brought the Badgers a 17-to-7 triumph over Ohio State, and little Jackie Welsh, who started Pennsylvania to its 19-to-0 verdict over Army.

All those victims were proud members of the unbeaten list until Saturday's games but they skidded into the discard along with such other respectable members as Syracuse, Texas Christian and Penn State.

SINKY GREAT.

Of the heroes, Sinkwich probably was the greatest. Taking charge in the final period after his team had been blanked for three quarters he tossed a pair of touchdown passes to his former Youngstown (Ohio) schoolmate, George Poschner. The other Bulldog marker followed a pass interception, which sent Andy Dudish, who acquired his southern accent in Breslau, Pa., scurrying for the payoff station.

Hirsch, Harder and Schreiner were the standouts at Wisconsin, where crisp downfield blocking and rugged tackling shot the Badger backs into the open and kept Ohio State's Gene Fekete and Paul Sarringhaus in check whenever they approached the goal line.

Jack Welsh, all 150 pounds of him, snared a Hank Mazur pass in the third period and looped 28 yards to the Army four in the third to start Penn off on its scoring. The Quakers, who rate alongside Boston College as the best in the east, couldn't find the combination again until four minutes before the contest's end. Then they counted twice in two minutes on another pass interception and a 52-yard run by Paxton Gifford.

OTHER DEFEATS.

Superior reserves and experience of the North Carolina Pre-Flight team ended Syracuse's victory string, 9 to 0; a field goal by Bert Edminson gave Baylor a 10 to 7 decision over Texas Christian and West Virginia pummeled Penn State, 24 to 0.

Wisconsin's victory lifted it into undisputed first place in the Big Ten conference with three triumphs but the Buckeyes retained second. Iowa, which mastered Purdue, 13 to 6; Minnesota, a 19 to 7 victor over Northwestern; Michigan and Illinois, although the Wolverines won Saturday by a 28 to 14 count, all are tied for third with two loop wins and a defeat each.

Indiana was busy outside the conference and for three-quarters led the Iowa Seahawks, 6 to 0, on Billy Hillenbrand's first period thrust. The Pre-Flight team, however, smashed over 26 points in the finale.

Georgia's success made it the Southeastern conference leader and the Bulldogs should now glide to their November 28 meeting with Georgia Tech without a worry.

The Tech eleven, with Clint Castleberry and Eddie Prokop setting the pace, registered their first victory over Duke, 26 to 7, on the Durham field, and also are unbeaten.

Detroit Drops 1st of Season To Marquette

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Marquette bounced the University of Detroit from the ranks of the nation's football unbeaten today, whipping the Titans, 10 to 0, before a crowd of 7,000.

Battling on a field that made footing insecure and ball-handling difficult, the Hilltoppers, beaten only by Wisconsin's powerful Badgers this season, cashed in on scoring opportunities in the third and final periods. The Titans, who had run up a string of victories at the expense of Wayne University, Fort Knox, Manhattan and Georgetown, never threatened seriously, and failed to advance beyond Marquette's 32-yard line.

Villanova Crushes Manhattan, 32 to 0

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—(AP) Inspired by Al Postus' 78-yard touchdown run in the second period, an underdog Villanova eleven crushed favored Manhattan, 32 to 0, before 15,000 at Shibe Park today. Before Postus got loose on his long run Manhattan thrice had a first down within the Villanova 10, but thereafter failed to threaten.

DODGERS LOSE

BROOKLYN, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Cleveland Rams, capitalizing on Brooklyn's errors, just about ruined the Dodgers' hopes of winning the championship of the Eastern division of the National Football League today with a 17-to-0 triumph before 6,329 fans at Ebbets Field.

Sinky Completed 17 of 33 Passes

Sinkwich completed more than half the passes he tried Saturday—17 out of 33. The gain was 230 yards.

Frankie was limited to 36 yards on the ground. But Alabama couldn't stop his passing.

Georgia Dog Wins National Crown

PADUCAH, Ky., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Kentucky Buzzard, the Georgia champion owned by C. D. Prescott, of Wrightsville, Ga., was crowned national field champion of the National Fox Hunters Association as the organization ended its 49th annual meeting here last night.

The hound finished first in a starting group of 181 dogs which took to the field last Thursday in the all-age chase.

Scoring 340 points, the winner had 55 more than the second-place hound, Cock Robin, owned by Kermit Woolsley, of Windlow, Ind. A Paducah dog, Lula Belle II, owned by W. L. Smithson, took third-place honors and was the only Kentucky-owned dog to place among the top ten.

Moccasins Upset Rollins Team, 14-6

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 1.—(AP)—An underdog University of Chattanooga eleven outfought Rollins College before an estimated 13,500 spectators here last night to walk off with a well-deserved 14-6 victory

Score of 123 Wins East Lake Event

The foursome of D. P. Bowen, P. W. Crawford, H. L. Thompson and Lawson Henry grabbed top honors in the East Lake dogfight yesterday afternoon with a score of 123.

Arch Martin, Elgin Poole, W. F. Ison and P. F. O'Brien composed the second-place quartet, finishing with a 124.

Other foursomes and their scores were: P. G. Lombard, J. W. Roach, W. T. Etzel and F. H. Whitting, 125; W. F. Darby, H. D. Kline, T. J. Nichols and M. G. Harris, 127; R. J. King, Bob Smith, Rufus Brown and R. J. Angel, 128; E. A. Burtzloff, J. R. Harris, C. D. Grover and W. P. Rogers, 129; A. M. Perkerson, H. S. Roberts, M. C. Webb and D. S. Sharpe, 129, and H. E. Graham, George Fogg, J. O. Rhyne and E. C. Napier, 129.

The special prize went to E. M. Malcolm with a drive which landed six feet away from the flag on the No. 2 hole.

Walthour Cagers Will Meet Tonight

The Walthour City League, one of the fastest Class A boys' basketball loops in the city for the past two seasons, will hold its first organization meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at 41 Pryor street, N. E.

All of last season's members together with any new club interested in entering a team in Class A competition are invited to attend this meeting.

Teams unable to be present may secure full particulars by contacting Wingfield Short at MA. 7137.

100-Yard Run Tops St. Louis Victory

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Employing an effective passing attack, the downtrodden St. Louis University Billikens arose and smote a favored Loyola of Los Angeles eleven, 20 to 6, today in a game featured by a 100-yard touchdown run by Herm Will, Billiken sophomore back.

Will's spectacular dash came with the opening kickoff of the second half, after Frank Brown had tossed a 24-yard aerial to Bob Woratzeck which connected for the first marker in the first quarter.

Spinks Shoots His Ninth Ace

This business of making hole-in-one shots is getting to be a habit insofar as A. C. Spinks, of the East Lake Lake Country Club, is concerned.

Playing with Roy Massey, Curtis Kyle and Tom Mahone yesterday afternoon on the East Lake No. 1 course, Spinks sank his tee shot on No. 2 for his ninth hole-in-one. He used a four iron to turn the trick. This was the second time he had aced this hole. The sixth hole on this same course formed the setting for two previous aces. His other five aces were made on the West End course.

Major Leagues To Hold Draft Meeting Today

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The annual major league baseball draft meeting will be held tomorrow with family men in the minor leagues expected to receive the chief attention since they will be less likely to be caught immediately in another draft—the government's selective service system.

The meeting, usually held on the eve of the World Series, was delayed this year to allow the minors more time to dispose of their players on a barter basis. Tomorrow's business will be conducted in the office of K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner.

The draft is baseball's guarantee to the players against extended "cold storage" in the minors. Subject to the draft are those players who have been in the majors and returned to the minors, those who have been in a Class AA league four years, Class A-1 or a three years, Class B, C and D two years and Class E one year.

Only a few club representatives were expected to appear at

GEORGIA AND BEAU JACK.

The red clay hills of Georgia don't have to place their entire enthusiasm on two fine football teams. Georgia's sporting colony is now turning back to the days of Tiger Flowers and paying more than normal attention to the Tiger's possible successor—Beau Jack, the Augusta Ambuscade.

Tiger Flowers was one of the fine fighters of a big day in boxing when he had to meet such opponents as Harry Greb and Jack Delaney.

Greb looked on a Flowers battle with no great enthusiasm. It is more than possible that Beau Jack won't be another Tiger Flowers, but the ex-bootblack from Augusta has come along in a big hurry for a kid of 20, and is now within stalking distance of the lightweight championship.

If Beau Jack can get by Allie Stolz in New York's Madison Square Garden next week, he should get his shot at the championship—with a good chance to break through. Contrary to printed reports, your correspondent has no financial connection with Beau Jack in any form—merely the sentimental interest in watching a young bootblack and serious caddie climb the ladder of ring fame.

Beau Jack never has had time to waste on such matters as learning how to read or write. He first became alert at locating a lost ball in the rough or putting a glow upon your shoes. Then he began to put on a ring style that at least pleased the patrons. It is something of the Henry Armstrong fashion—which consists largely of keeping both fists busy from start to finish.

The only advice we ever gave Beau Jack was to run at least five miles a day and abstain from alcohol and nicotine—a plan he has followed.

He is a fast-moving, rough-and-ready kid who can take and give his full share of punishment. He also is one of the few who actually likes to fight. It has been his main relaxation.

GEORGIA SUPPORT.

Alabama claims a fighter by the name of Joe Louis, who was and is fair enough. Georgia understands that Beau Jack won't be any Joe Louis. He may not be another Tiger Flowers, but Flowers has long since passed away and Louis is in the Army—spurring a horse in place of another heavyweight.

Georgia is used to champions. Among them we can mention Ty Cobb and Bobby Jones, two of the greatest.

If Beau Jack can slug his way by Stolz and Sammy Angott, before the Army calls him in along with Ray Robinson and others now left, it will add another chapter to Georgia sporting history.

They like Beau Jack in Georgia. He is a quiet, simple, modest kid, willing to work and work hard. He isn't packed with the skill that Joe Gans and Benny Leonard knew, but he is strong, with the back, shoulders and arms of a welterweight, powerfully built.

He is full of action. He is dead game. He will make Stolz and Angott fight whether they want to or not, and neither has been any too hot as a fighting man. For that reason you are hearing a lot about Beau Jack down this way.

Legion Scores Restrictions on New Draftees

'Not Sound Military Policy,' Says National Commander.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The American Legion "is unalterably opposed" to the proposal which would deny the Army the use of 18 and 19-year-old selectees for combat duty until they had received a year's training after induction, its national commander, Roane Waring, said tonight.

In an address prepared for a broadcast, Waring declared the amendment to the 'teen-age draft bill sponsored by Senator O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas, would compel the Army to concentrate these selectees "into separate units and earmark them as not available for combat duty until 1944."

"This would necessitate the setting up in the Army of many divisions whose enlisted personnel would be made up entirely of men in the 18 and 19-year-old group," he continued. "It would absolutely prevent the beneficial and the leavening effect that can be had in having older men of training, experience and stability placed side by side with younger men furnishing the fresher qualities of youth.

"It is not a sound military policy to have so-called elite divisions made up entirely of very young men. It might have a very disastrous effect and in battle would probably result in these divisions suffering far heavier casualties on account of the natural daring of youth and the lack of older men standing alongside to furnish the steadiness, stability and experience of battle.

"Instead of being a means of protection to these young men, the proposed amendment, in my opinion, would actually result in a detriment to their training, their safety and their effective combat efficiency."

Floyd County To Begin Chest Drive Tomorrow

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 1.—Rome and Floyd county's annual Community Chest campaign will get underway Tuesday, with civic teams emphasizing the official slogan, "Do His Share, Too" — asking larger gifts from fewer prospects to make up for the contributors who are now serving in the armed forces.

Dr. Van Enloe, prominent Rome businessman, is serving as general chairman of the drive. He announced that a dinner meeting will be held Monday night to give final instructions to the teams of canvassers.

Agencies benefiting from the drive will include the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Salvation Army, the Maple Street Community Center, the colored nursery, the Open Door home, and Fire Chief W. T. McKinney's special emergency relief fund. Teams working in the campaign hope to raise over $23,000.

Storming Attack On Nazis in Desert Related by Writer

In one of the most graphic eyewitness accounts yet to emerge from the current battle in Egypt, George Lait, veteran International News Service war reporter, describes herewith a British storming attack on Axis positions in which the correspondent accompanied the combat troops under fire. He tells of driving behind the German lines, of bullets whizzing past his head, of seeing men go down in hand-to-hand and bayonet fighting and of hundreds of Axis troops taken prisoners. Lait, whose reportorial assignments have taken him into the thick of several previous campaigns in the North African desert, has been on the front firing lines of the present British offensive since it was launched on the night of October 23.

WITH AN EIGHTH ARMY COMBAT PATROL ON THE EL ALAMEIN FRONT, Nov. 1.—Although the usual communique would probably describe Friday night's actions on the Egyptian front as "local engagements in various sectors," I have just witnessed eight hours of the bloodiest, toughest fighting I have ever seen.

For I accompanied a fighting patrol that broke into the German lines and behind German positions.

Ten p. m. was the zero hour. We waited anxiously in our slit trenches for our artillery battery to open up.

Right on the minute the thunder of our small and big guns began rending the air. Shells screamed overhead toward the enemy. Some sounded like auto tires speeding over a wet pavement. The larger ones sounded like subway express trains rushing past us.

We didn't leap up and run toward the enemy shouting, as some movies would depict attacks of this kind. We crept forward under the cover of our barrage, each man tense, gripping his weapon, ready for instant action.

Fifteen hundred yards ahead of us were the German and Italian machinegun nests.

Cross Minefield.

It was midnight before we reached the enemy.

There hadn't been a shot fired at us until we came near the enemy's positions. Then the officer commanding our patrol fired a colored Verey light. This was the signal for the rushing attack.

From all around shouting men leaped up, swinging bayoneted rifles, Bren guns, tommy guns and sacks of grenades.

Instantly the enemy's machine-guns opened up with a deadly chatter, but they couldn't even slow down our men.

We overran them and there ensued some of the grimmest hand-to-hand fighting I have ever witnessed in the encounters I have "covered" in the North African theater.

Some of our men did some close-quarter bayonet work. Others hurled hand grenades to blast the foe out of their nests. Still others fired away with rifles and tommy guns.

Many Casualties.

Our patrol suffered casualties. But the enemy suffered three or four times as many.

I saw a couple of our men close at hand crumple up silently when hit. I saw one Nazi hit by a glancing bullet right in the seat of his pants. The bullet barely grazed him, but it ripped out the whole seat of his trousers.

After much heavy fighting we took the objective and captured several hundred prisoners.

Simultaneously, other Eighth Army units were attacking on both sides of us. Their Verey lights were flashing in the dark air throughout the night. They also took their specified objectives and captured prisoners. The total of our night's work was very good, indeed.

By the grim light of dawn we took stock of ourselves. We gathered up the bodies of our dead and sent them back for soldiers' burials. We hustled the enemy's wounded to the rear in ambulances.

Then a few of us marched our prisoners to a point where trucks picked them up.

En route back, both our prisoners and ourselves were dive-bombed by Nazi Stukas. But the bombs fell wide and there were no casualties.

U. S. Places Ceiling On Firearms Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Maximum ceiling prices were placed today on pistols, rifles and other new small firearms, whether sold to the general public or to law enforcement or home guard agencies. The ceiling is the manufacturers' list price of January 10, 1942.

By JOHN SELBY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—"Hepcat" Toscanini and his fellow "jivesters," Benny Goodman and Earl Wild, did some things late this afternoon to a familiar piece of music by the late George Gershwin—the "Rhapsody in Blue."

It was something a lot of persons never expected to hear from Toscanini. It may even have been a surprise to the maestro himself. Certainly the NBC symphony seemed a little startled at a few of the hot licks that emerged.

In addition the program was the first Toscanini has ever conducted that was made up entirely of American music—oddly chosen, in part, but unquestionably American.

Before Rhapsody.

Before the Rhapsody, Toscanini conducted "Memories of My Childhood," in which Charles Martin Loeffler sums up three years in Russia; Paul Creston's "Choric Dance No. 2," and a potpourri by Morton Gould called "Lincoln Legend." The late Mr. Loeffler lived in Massachusetts, thought about Russia in French terms.

Creston took a bow for a brutal, stinging and short little piece that Toscanini evidently liked very much. Mr. Gould also had his bow—for what, was a little less obvious.

And then Benny strode on, with Navy Musician Wild, on leave from his assignment in Washington, and the fun began.

Toscanini, usually a precisionist, allowed every sort of liberty in the famous rhapsody. He let Benny blow the black stick hot, and he let Harry Glantz blow the trumpet even hotter. Musician Wild did all sorts of tricks at the piano under the beaming eye and glistening red bald spot of the maestro.

Orchestral Parts.

The orchestral parts of the Rhapsody came out better than usual when a symphony orchestra essays them. The work was written originally for Paul Whiteman and his band, and played for the first time in old Aeolian Hall. Lately it has been the centerpiece of innumerable Gershwin evenings by innumerable maestri—for years all the stadium concerts have had to do to fill Lewisohn Stadium was to announce a Gershwin evening with the Rhapsody and some "Porgy and Bess" excerpts.

It was so this afternoon. Even the restrictions that apply to broadcasting studios did nothing to slow down the resulting enthusiasm.

The maestro got a lot of telegrams, including one from Mrs. Rose Gershwin, George's mother, and 25 or 30 from dance band leaders the country over. It was an event to all of them; it was just fun for the audience. And for Benny.

Legion Auxiliary Units Will Meet

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 1.—Mrs. Rufus Bush, president of the Fourth District American Legion Auxiliary, has called a meeting of all units in the district at the clubhouse in Barnesville Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. M. G. McQuown, of Decatur, state president of the auxiliary, will be the principal speaker. Other state officers will also appear on the program. Delegates from 10 units will attend.

Mrs. Kelly Bowman is president of the local auxiliary, which will act as official hostess for the occasion.

Nazis Claim 8 Ships Sunk in Indian Ocean

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS), Nov. 1.—(AP)—A special communique said today U-boats have penetrated the edge of the Indian Ocean and sunk eight ships totaling 52,518 tons east of Cape Agulhas, the most southerly headland of Africa, and in Cape waters.

It was the first time German submarines had moved into the Indian Ocean from the Atlantic in their "hunt for enemy transport ships," the communique said.

British Spring Night Assault On Desert Line

By FRANK L. MARTIN.

A FORWARD ARTILLERY BATTERY OBSERVATION POST IN THE EGYPTIAN DESERT, Oct. 31. — (Delayed) — (AP) — Bayonet-flashing British infantry smashed forward under an earth-jarring barrage last night and in savage hand-to-hand fighting flushed the Germans and Italians from another strongpoint on the El Alamein front.

The Allied troops swarmed upon the shell-flattened enemy position and even as they continued their forward rush a stream of Nazi and Fascist prisoners began pouring to the British rear.

I arrived at this most forward observation post for an artillery battery late in the afternoon in time to see American and RAF medium bombers and Kitty bombers set the stage for the approaching night assault. This post is some distance in front of the enemy position and the attack came in from the left and the right of me.

Sand Seems to Boil.

Bombs from our planes would fall, as four flights would be coming within the next hour and a half.

Exactly on time the first large formation of B-25 Billy Mitchell medium bombers flown by Americans and Bostons piloted by RAF men arrived and the sand under them seemed to boil as tons of explosives landed directly in front of the target area.

The other three flights followed in the same perfect formation and let go with their bombs. The tin roof over our head rattled at the impact.

A single enemy 75-pounder meanwhile had been annoying our sector. Taking a bearing, the command post decided it must be in an abandoned pit shown on our maps, so British 25-pounders took a crack at it for a few minutes.

First all guns would join for the general barrage and then each battery would turn its guns to special tasks, first knocking out a path and then concentrating on individual sectors in enemy territory ahead of the advancing infantry where the enemy's strong points were located.

Zero Minute.

Just before the firing began I remember hearing a man shout, "Battery ready to engage!" In the battery post officers were checking their watches with headquarters and other battery posts by telephone as the zero minute approached.

During the brief preceding rest period an officer told of seeing a damaged enemy plane come out of a dive and a man bail out. The plane went into another dive, turned and climbed, then three more Nazis jumped, leaving the craft to fly itself.

For 10 minutes he said the pilotless plane banked and zoomed, scaring the wits out of everybody in the vicinity because it appeared at times to be heading toward them. Finally it crashed.

Backing in the observation post we were told to check the firing of "Eck," "George" and "Nuts," all groups of guns firing together.

Then within 60 hellish seconds it seemed that the end of the world might be at hand. Out in front, in an area 5,000 yards by 400 yards, more than a thousand shells exploded in that brief minute.

The attack started at 10 p. m. The infantry began moving forward a few moments later. Our battery was assigned to fire on 28 positions before morning. The combined barrage reached a rate of more than 1,500 shells a minute.

Five Big Fires.

Back in the command post a phone message reported five big fires, one of them believed to be an enemy ammunition dump. The heaviest guns behind were sending shells over that sounded like the laundry whistle at home.

After an officer reported the infantry was on schedule and a little later they had gained their objective, I returned to the observation post.

Victory lights burst from time to time, indicating an objective had been reached. The moonlight failed to untangle the confusion on the battlefield. I could only tell that our troops were moving by, which meant the advance was going well.

A little retaliation came back from our shelling. After the artillery halted just before dawn Stukas sneaked out to drop a few bombs in the vicinity of our guns but they failed to score.

Other enemy planes machinegunned us until sunup.

Aussie Officer Places Bets During Off Hours

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 1.—(AP)—If you haye the money, you can place a bet on the outcome of Australia's biggest horse race November 21 while under Jap shell fire.

At the edge of a trail in the Owen Stanley mountains stands a native house with the sign: "Melbourne Cup quotations, best odds, no credit."

The bookmaker is an Australian sergeant, whose business hours are any time he isn't on military duties. He says business is better than it was last year when he made bets in Egypt and Syria.

News Briefs

TWO PLANES DAMAGED.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—(INS) Two United States Army planes today made forced landing in the state of Chiapas, the newspaper La Prensa reported. Pilots and passengers escaped with slight injuries but the planes were damaged. The ships were part of a squadron of seven en route to Panama, La Prensa said.

BELGIAN PATRIOTS.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The free Belgian news agency, Inbel, quoted a German communique today as saying that at least one factory guard had been killed and several other persons injured recently in attacks by Belgian patriots on factories and other facilities in Belgium serving the Germans.

IRA RAIDS.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Eighty men were detained by police today after a series of raids which continued throughout the night on homes of suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Some arms and ammunition also were seized.

SUPPORT YOUR CHURCH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Charles E. Wilson, vice chairman of the War Production Board and chairman of the sponsors' committee of the United Church Canvass, appealed today for men and women to take an active part in their churches.

PRICE INCREASES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration today authorized wholesalers and retailers to pass on to the public limited increases in the prices of 1942 packs of fruit preserves, jams, jellies and apple butter arising from increased labor and raw material costs.

INDUCTEE KILLED

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 1.—(AP)—One Negro inductee was killed and eight others injured, one seriously, in an accident involving two buses today at the railroad crossing at Lewis, north of Oil City, all from Forrest City, Arkansas.

ARMY BRIBERY TRIAL.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The trial of two Miami Beach businessmen on federal charges of conspiring to bribe Army officers at Miami Beach has been continued to November 17 because of legal arguments over disputed evidence.

NAZI OFFICERS KILLED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Moscow radio, heard by CBS, reported tonight that two grenades thrown among a group of German officers in the streets of Lille, occupied France, killed three officers.

Purchasing Agent Held on Crash Charges

H. C. Smith, Lawrenceville, Arrested Here After 2 Accidents. .

Two automobile accidents late Saturday afternoon on Northview avenue resulted in a man listed on police records as H. C. Smith, 50, of Lawrenceville, purchasing agent for the state of Georgia, being arrested on four charges.

Smith, arrested by Radio Patrolmen L. F. Preston and P. M. Stribling, was charged with drunk on streets, drunk and operating an automobile, reckless driving accident, and leaving the scene of an accident.

According to a report filed by the investigating officers, Smith's automobile is said to have rammed a car belonging to Harry Moscow, of 1346 Northview avenue, while Moscow's car was parked in front of his home. Circling the block, the report said, Smith's car again crashed into Moscow's vehicle, then left the scene.

The Army and Navy in Georgia

Plans were announced last week at Ft. Benning, Ga., for a huge War Bond breakfast to be held at 9 o'clock Sunday, November 15, in the post gymnasium, under the direction of the Officers' Club.

It is believed that Benning will be the first military post to sponsor such an event. Only military personnel will be admitted to the breakfast and admission will be the purchase of at least a $25 bond.

Enlisted men and officers will join for the breakfast, and Lieutenant Colonel J. D. Rosenberger Jr., post adjutant and chairman of the breakfast, said a goal of $30,000 has been established.

TEN GEORGIANS GET COMMISSIONS

They are: Walter Elijah Arnold, of 618 Cameron street; William Lucius Carbine Jr., of 940 Cypress street; and Joe Cousins Plunkett, of 2656 New Buford Highway; all of Atlanta; and James Humphreys Griffin, of Macon; Lawrence Willard Newman, of Rising Fawn; William Branch Nunnally Jr., and Arthur Alec Padgett, of Rome; Tom Shackelford, of Newnan; James Forest Taylor, of Jackson; and William Lee Turner, of Fort Valley.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

—An enlisted man in the Navy is automatically promoted after two months' service?

—Volunteers for submarine duty receive a 50 per cent increase in pay?

—"Fiddle board" is Navy terminology for racks used during rough weather aboard destroyers to prevent dishes from sliding on mess tables. (Destroyers, because of their narrow beams, roll at eight-to-nine-second intervals, and are far rougher than cruisers or battleships).

—The linings of large naval guns wear so that the interiors have to be relined after 150 firings.

FOUR ATLANTANS ORDERED TO DUTY

Headquarters of Fourth Service Command announced the following Air Corps Enlisted Reservists have been ordered to active duty: Roy F. Alley, of 1717 Cornell road; Ralph C. Andrews, of 1064 Hill street; Henry Clay Burr, of 80 Inman Circle; and James W. Childress, of 262 Murray Hill avenue.

All reported to the Air Forces Classification Center in Nashville, Tennessee.

McDONOUGH YOUTHS GET COMMISSIONS

Walter Cook and Lamar Pendley, both of McDonough, have been commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Army. Lieutenant Cook was inducted into the Army in February and was assigned to the Chemical Warfare Division. He received his commission from the Chemical Warfare Service Officer school, Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, on October 30.

Lieutenant Pendley was inducted in April. He was transferred from Shepherd Field to Officers' Training school at Miami, Fla., where he was issued his commission this week.

Among the 2,500 men commissioned as second lieutenants in the Army Air Forces along with screen star Clark Gable at Miami Beach was Graham Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mitchell, of 3015 Andrews drive.

Promotion of Cecil G. Thompson, of 1573 Peachtree street, from the grade of private to that of corporal technician was announced last week at Camp Butler, N. C., where he is assigned to the headquarters detachment.

Dr. Harry E. Talmadge, of Athens, has been commissioned a captain in the Army Medical Corps and reported last week to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., pending permanent assignment.

Lieutenant (j. g.) Clarence Ward Sudderth, U. S. N. R., recently completed his training at the Naval Supply Corps school at Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, and is now visiting in Atlanta prior to reporting for duty with a construction battalion. He is the brother of Aubrey P. Sudderth, of 2205 Essex avenue.

Sam K. Bennett, of Atlanta, a private in the Marine Corps, is now on Guadalcanal Island, accoring to a letter dated October 7, which his mother received recently. Seventeen-year-old Bennett enlisted last January and is the son of Mrs. T. E. McDaniel, of 727 Dill avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Merritt, of Rochelle, has received notice that their son, George T. Merritt, is somewhere in the Pacific. Young Merritt is a member of a signal battalion.

He is the son of Mrs. C. S. McCall, of Rochelle, and is aiding in the training of new soldiers at this station. He has been in the air forces since his enlistment September 17, 1941.

Getting The Range at Fort Mac

Fort McPherson's two WAAC officers will begin a tour of several cities in Georgia next week to carry information of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps to Georgia women.

Third Officer Virginia H. Martin will be in Columbus at the Army recruiting office Thursday to interview prospective WAACS. She will go to Macon Friday and Saturday, and to Gainesville November 16.

Third Officer Elizabeth S. MacDonald will be at the Augusta recruiting office November 9 and 10; at Savannah November 11 and 12, and at Waycross November 13.

Many more WAAC applicants are now needed to fill all types of jobs in the Army, relieving soldiers for combat duty. There are more than 60 different positions from which WAACS may choose.

Any woman who is a citizen of the United States and between the ages of 21 and 45 is eligible to apply. Physical and mental tests are given all applicants, but it is not necessary to have a nigh school diploma to get in the WAACS. Base pay of auxiliaries has been raised to $50 a month, plus clothes, room and board—the same as for the regular Army. All WAAC auxiliaries have opportunity to apply for officer training after they have completed three months' basic training.

Application may be made at any Army recruiting station, or information can be obtained by writing the WAAC recruiting officer, Fort McPherson, Ga.

Georgians in the medical detachment at Fort McPherson who were promoted this week included Sergeant Charles E. Davis, of Toccoa, to staff sergeant; Sergeant Edward H. Shannon, of East Point, to technician third grade; Corporal William A. Huff, of Duluth; Corporal Bennie F. Thigpen, of Gibson, and Technician Fifth Grade Joe L. Duncan, of College Park, to sergeants; Technician Fifth Grade Cecil M. Moss, of Alpharetta, to technician fourth grade; Private First Class Henry A. Bishop, of East Point, and Private First Class Werner D. Moore, of 490 Boulevard Place, N. E., to technician fifth grade; Privates Louis R. Greene, of 561 Peeples street, S. W.; Hub Hulsey, of Dawsonville; Arthur W. Parsons Jr., of Abbeville; Edward Sherman, of 49 Third street, N. E., and Mercer A. Waldrop, of Nelson, to privates first class.

Captain John McGinty, director of supply at Fort McPherson, has been promoted to the rank of major, it was announced yesterday. Major McGinty came to Fort McPherson last May from Camp Gordon, Augusta. He was formerly stationed with the Sixth Cavalry at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Solons Await Election Results To Pass Bills

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Congress, marking time until the returns are in from Tuesday's election, faces a showdown on the 'teen-age draft bill when the members return, along with other controversial legislation slated for action before the 77th session expires.

After the house speedily passed the measure lowering the draft age from 20 to 18, the senate tacked on some amendments, including one providing for at least 12 months of training after induction before 'teen-age selectees may be sent into combat, delaying its enactment.

House advocates of the training provision, which is strongly opposed by the armed services, never had a chance to vote on it and refused to allow the bill to go to conference without assurance they would get a chance to go on record. They have announced they will move to instruct the conferees to retain the senate amendment and claim they have enough votes to win their point but Speaker Rayburn give notice he would not recognize a motion for this purpose before Friday.

Deferring the final decision until after the elections is believed by opponents of the senate provision to have strengthened their hand. They took the view that some of the members up for re-election might hesitate to oppose such a proposal before elections but that returning members just re-elected for two years might not be so apprehensive of possible political consequences.

Much less controversial are two other senate changes. One stipulates that irreplaceable farm workers shall be deferred from induction as long as they stay on the farms or until suitable replacements can be obtained. The other provides that registrants who have passed their 45th birthdays shall not be inducted.

Also on the calendar of legislation that might be considered between now and January are bills to permit the merging of Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies and to allow members of the women's reserve of the Naval Reserve to serve abroad.

The Navy Department has recommended relaxation of the original statutory requirement forbidding the WAVES from serving abroad, a ban written into the original act by the senate.

On the farm and economic fronts, some congressmen have expressed dissatisfaction with administration of the new economic stabilization law and would like to see some more legislation. They object particularly to the manner in which farm ceiling prices are being established and to regulations limiting net individual incomes to $25,000.

Can Crowd Eternity into an Hour or Stretch an Hour to Eternity

Every soldier takes with him two pictures of the girl he loves. One is inside the pocket of his uniform. He carries the other deep in his heart—the sweet and tender memory of the way she looked when he was home on last leave.

To every man that image is different, yet its elements are the same. Laughter and sunshine, soft breezes in happy places, starlight and perfume and the wistful recollection of a song. The recollection of her loveliness helps sustain him on the march. He hearkens to her voice in the night's long watches. The promise of her and all its hope and tenderness is the future for which he fights. These things he will remember regardless of time, space or war.

Perhaps this is why no woman can forget that in time of war, a man is first of all a soldier; but a woman is not a farm hand, a worker, teacher, housewife or nurse, but first of all someone a soldier loves.

We must not let them down. Keep working, keep buying United States War Bonds. Keep fighting for America.
